

Argentina to Cut Orders in United States

Germany, Britain Expected to Get More Business
TRADE BREACH
Order Says Imports Far In Excess of U. S. Purchases

Buenos Aires—(AP)—Argentina ordered a sharp reduction in purchases from the United States today, and the implication was felt that Germany and Great Britain would get more of the business.

The announcement in morning newspapers by Pedro Gropo, minister of finance, appeared to have developed between the two richest American nations an open breach over trade—the base upon which United States Secretary of State Hull built the American good neighbor policy.

Gropo declared United States imports must be reduced to "the level of three or four years ago" because the imports far overbalanced United States purchases of Argentine goods.

Seeks Bi-Lateral Pact
The minister indicated Argentina could not accept a most-favored nation treaty offered by the United States but wanted a bi-lateral agreement to strike a trade balance—treaty similar to that which Argentina already has with a number of European countries.

A reduction of imports to previous levels would mean a cut of 40 per cent from 1938 figures or about $31,000,000.

Gropo's announcement was published as a half-page advertisement in morning newspapers. It insisted the reduction—to be effected by withholding import permits—was not discrimination but of help of European countries but a necessity.

Britain, biggest investor in Argentina and her best customer, has been pressing Argentina to accept more British goods to maintain debt interest payments.

Germany, dynamic third customer, has been offering to take vast quantities of wheat and beef in barter for German-manufactured products.

Help Solve Jobs Problem, Is Plea

Federation Leaders Want Government to Work With Business

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—American Federation of Labor leaders, ending their mid-winter study of labor affairs, placed before the Roosevelt administration today a fresh appeal for cooperation with business in solving the unemployment problem.

The federation's executive council, in a three-page declaration written especially for Secretary of Commerce Hopkins and Secretary of Labor Perkins, urged the government to remove whatever barriers stand in the path of business expansion and let private industry absorb the unemployed.

"There is a lack of confidence and distrust in governmental, social and economic procedure should be removed," the council said.

The council's pronouncement on business conditions ended two and a half week of conferences that left the question of peace in the labor in the same deadlock it has occupied for more than three years.

On the affirmative side the council put its final approval on the campaign to revise the Wagner act, topped it off with a surprise demand for a new and larger labor board, and resolved to have no part of John L. Lewis' plan to work through the next Democratic national convention for the nomination of a progressive candidate for president.

Business and Labor at Odds Over 2 Bills

Catlin and White Measures Would Ban Secondary Picketing
DEFINE DISPUTES
Labor Spokesmen Say Proposal Would Increase Industrial Strife

Madison—(AP)—Leaders of organized labor and a group of small business men were aligned against each other yesterday at a public hearing of the Catlin and White bills which give a new definition of a labor dispute and outlaw secondary picketing.

The bills are pending in both houses of the legislature. They provide that a labor dispute can exist only between an employer and two or more of his employees and that a strike or lockout must have been declared. Picketing of any establishment where there is no labor dispute would be made unlawful.

Labor spokesmen declared the bills would increase, rather than reduce industrial strife and would put the labor movement back to where it was 20 years ago. The small business men declared that under the labor code, as it now stands, outside sources can interfere with the workers of any establishments and picket retail outlets which are not involved in labor troubles.

Matt Carpenter, Milwaukee, told the joint judiciary committee of the legislature that the Carpenter Bakery company, of which he is secretary, has been forced to close because his workers refused to join an A. F. of L. union. He said the union picketed his plant and retail stores which bought his products. He predicted that if the Catlin and White bills were passed the bakery, which had 100 employees, would be reopened.

5 Bandits Seize Cash and Jewels In Hotel Holdup

Insurance Adjustors Decline to Estimate Loss in Raid

Miami Beach, Fla.—(AP)—A carefully-planned holdup of the Blackstone hotel early today netted five bandits a six-figure plunder of cash and jewels from office safe deposits boxes.

Insurance adjustors, questioning some 200 guests as to their losses, declined to make a statement until the check was completed. Police Chief H. V. Yocum said eight hours afterwards he could not yet tell whether the loot would amount to $5,000 or $500,000.

One guest, Mrs. Antonina Marko of New York, told detectives John McCarter and John Selby her loss amounted to $75,000, represented by four diamond and emerald bracelets, three diamond rings, a $25,000 pearl necklace and $2,000 cash.

Dave Greenblatt, head porter, told of losing $3,500 worth of gems and cash representing his life savings. Mrs. Morris Millinet of East Orange, N. J., said she had a $800 ring in one of the rifled boxes and Mrs. Anna Blumenthal of Portland, Ore., said she reported the theft of a bracelet and brooch worth $2,500.

The bandits, unmasked and armed with at least one sub-machine gun, chiselled open only 14 boxes in the bank of 100.

Morgie Berenson, a guest who was one of 10 persons tied up by the robbers during their foray, said he thought he could identify them if they were caught.

Say Suspect Pawned Ring of Slain Woman

Indianapolis—(AP)—A diamond wedding ring that belonged to Mrs. Carrie Lelah Romik, hammer slaying victim, was found in the clothing of William R. Butsch, 37, a former convict, when he was arrested recently. Chief of Detectives Fred Simon said today.

The detective chief added, "we are satisfied that Butsch was the man who pawned in Anderson and Muncie numerous other valuables taken from the Romik apartment."

Butsch, a former resident of Louisville, Ky., has denied Simon said. He also has denied any connection with the killing of the three-wed 35-year-old woman, whose body was found the night of Jan. 17 by her 28-year-old husband, Harold Daniel Romik, when he arrived at their apartment, after his day's work in a five-and-ten-cent store.

U. S. Motion Is Denied In Oil Conspiracy Case

Chicago—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals denied today a government motion for a writ of mandamus to expunge an order by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone of Madison, Wis., which set aside convictions of 11 out of 46 defendants in the midwest oil conspiracy case.

After a jury convicted the 46, Judge Stone sustained conviction of 17, set aside the verdict and freed 11 and granted new trials to 18.

On Feb. 3 Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley set Oct. 2, 1939, as the date for the second trial and said plans were to retry the 18.

The 17 whose convictions were sustained have appeals pending in the appellate court.

Premier Imredi And His Cabinet Quit in Hungary

Foe of Jews Announces Discovery He Himself Is Partly Jewish

Budapest—(AP)—Premier Bela Imredi today announced the resignation of his cabinet. The resignation was accepted by Regent Nicholas Horthy who immediately summoned former Minister of Education Count Paul Teleki to a conference at the regent's palace. It was believed Teleki would be asked to take over the premiership and form a new cabinet.

After resigning because of parliamentary opposition to his sweeping proposals for regulating Jews, Imredi afterwards started his part members by announcing he had discovered that he himself was partly Jewish.

In a speech before colleagues of the party of national unity whom he had persuaded to adopt his anti-Jewish program—which envisaged laws curtailing political rights of Jews, barring them from certain types of work and limiting their number in others—Imredi declared one of his great grandparents was born a Jew.

"This fact, which only lately came to my attention, is one of the reasons why I felt myself obliged to retire as premier," said Imredi, who assumed the Hungarian premiership nine months ago. He had been accused of trying to introduce an authoritarian regime. Many legislators suspected that he intended to abolish parliament or greatly reduce its powers.

Imredi held and still holds, that legislation for the regulation of Jewish participation in economic and cultural affairs of the country is a good thing for our fatherland," he said in a tired voice at a party meeting in the parliament building.

Under terms of the proposed anti-Jewish laws, which provide exemptions for many persons of mixed blood, Imredi would not be considered Jewish, but he told his party colleagues that "it is inconsistent that under such circumstances I should be identified with such legislation."

Madrid Is Facing Intensified Siege

Central Quarters of City Subjected to Artillery Fire

Perpignan, France—(AP)—Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco has intensified the siege of Madrid, with his heavy artillery shelling the Spanish government capital daily.

Insurgent guns bombarded the central quarters of the city last night, government dispatches said. For the third successive day since Premier Juan Negrin installed his cabinet in Madrid.

Casualties from the shelling Sunday and Monday were estimated at 28 dead and 106 wounded. Effects of Tuesday night's bombardment were not reported immediately.

Battlefronts, which have been quiet since insurgent conquests of Catalonia and the government's transfer to the central zone, remained static.

Premier Negrin turned his attention to improving his political position, which has been weakened by the desire of moderate elements to make peace with Franco and unrest among extremists whose action has been curtailed under the existing state of war.

Barcelona—(AP)—Six Spanish government leaders went on trial for their lives today while only military formalities stood between Eduardo Barriobero, first president of Madrid-Barcelona peoples' tribunals, and an insurgent firing squad.

Barriobero, 61-year-old anarchist lawyer, was sentenced to death last night by an insurgent military tribunal in the same room of the palace of justice where he himself once pronounced death sentences on insurgent sympathizers.

Townsend Club Group Marches on Madison

Madison—(AP)—Hundreds of Townsend club members from all sections of Wisconsin staged a march on Madison today to register support of an assembly resolution memorializing congress to enact the General Welfare act.

Dr. Truman Gordon, state club representative, estimated more than 1,300 persons from 150 communities were in Madison for the hearing before the public welfare committee at 2 p. m. Gordon said they represented about 145,000 Wisconsin club members.

The resolution was sponsored by Assemblyman Charles F. Westfahl (R) Milwaukee.

Denies Hines Caused Him to Quash Cases

New York Magistrate Says He Was Not 'Influenced' in Dismissals
ANSWERS WEINBERG
Declares He Did Not Tell Hines 'I'll Take Care of It'

New York—(AP)—Magistrate Hulon Capshaw, appearing as a voluntary witness today at the retrial of Tammany District Leader James J. Hines, denied he had been "influenced" by Hines in dismissing policy raid arrests.

The witness was one of three city officials named by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey as having been "influenced, intimidated or bribed" by Hines in his alleged role as political fixer for the Dutch Schultz policy racket. Capshaw was suspended from the bench last summer pending the outcome of the Hines case.

Named with Capshaw were the late Magistrate Francis Erwin and former District Attorney William Copeland Dodge. No charges were made against the three.

Hines is on trial on an indictment accusing him of conspiracy and contriving a lottery in connection with Schultz's $20,000,000-a-year "numbers game" syndicate.

Weinberg Testimony
In the first trial, which ended in a mistrial last September, George Weinberg, one of Dewey's witnesses, testified he was present when Hines had a conversation with Capshaw relating to a series of policy arrest cases scheduled to come before the magistrate.

Weinberg swore Capshaw told Hines: "I'll take care of it. I've never failed you yet, have I?" Subsequently, Weinberg testified, Magistrate Capshaw dismissed the cases.

Capshaw denied under questioning by Chief Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker that any such conversation as that described by Weinberg had taken place and swore he never had been bribed, intimidated or influenced by Hines or any one else.

Capshaw went on the stand before Prosecutor Dewey had subjected former Police Commissioner James S. Bolan to an extended cross-examination.

Bolan—who testified yesterday that all he knew about the late Dutch Schultz, notorious gangster, was what he read in the newspapers—was questioned sharply about his testimony that he had received no income since he left the police department.

Coast Guard Cutter Leaves to Relieve Ice Bound Fishermen

Manistiquie, Mich.—(AP)—The coast guard cutter Antietam from Milwaukee was expected today to smash a channel through the ice and release the fishing tug Bob S. which has been ice-locked seven miles from the harbor since Monday with four men aboard.

On the tug are Mayor William Sellman of Manistiquie and Rubin Peterson, Manning Popow and Percy Tuffnell, local fishermen.

Another fishing tug, the William Junior, approached within half a mile of the trapped tug this morning, then was stopped by the ice-locked tug. The crew of the William Junior said the men aboard the Bob S. apparently were not in distress.

The Bob S. had fuel and food sufficient for two days when it left Manistiquie Monday. The temperature was in the twenties today.

Marion Talley Says Her Child May Lose One Eye

White Plains, N. Y.—(AP)—An assertion by Marion Talley, former opera star, that her 3-year-old daughter, Susan, would lose the sight of one eye unless a delicate operation were performed within a year was disclosed today.

Miss Talley, who has accused her estranged husband, Adolph Eckstrom, of withholding needed medical attention from the child, made her assertion in a court action seeking custody of the daughter.

But if he is drafted only for a stated period, the employer must keep his job open for him and take him back whenever the labor office's special requirement is filled.

The employer is not compelled to pay wages for the absent period, but the drafted person's wage scale for his new job may not necessarily be the same.

Killed When He Leaps From Truck Into Train

Barren, Wis.—(AP)—Fearing the truck in which he was riding would be struck by a train, Herbert Beccorelli, Jr. of Barren, leaped from the machine and stumbled into the train. Beccorelli, 24, was killed instantly.

Britain Doubles Borrowing Powers to Finance Gigantic Re-Armament Expenditures

London—(AP)—The government announced today that its borrowing powers to finance Britain's huge re-armament program would be doubled, with the limit raised from 200,000,000 pounds ($1,000,000,000) to 400,000,000 pounds ($2,000,000,000).

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the house of commons that a bill would be introduced in the house to legalize this increase, which he said was needed to meet defense expenditures.

When Britain's arms program was announced Feb. 16, 1937, the cost was set officially at $7,500,000,000 for five years, but subsequent statements by government leaders indicated that would be increased probably by as much as 50 per cent.

Sir John said that Britain's defense expenditure for the fiscal year 1939-40 would be "some 532 millions sterling"—$2,680,000,000.

1937 Action "Not Final"
He recalled that the decision taken in 1937 to borrow 400,000,000 pounds ($2,000,000,000) over a period of five years for the arms program was "by no means final," and pointed out that on the five-year basis only 80,000,000 pounds of that would be available to meet the 1939-40 expenditure. (The fiscal year ends March 31.)

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today that recognition of the insurgents as the legal government of Spain was "still under consideration" but the cabinet was reported to have agreed in principle on such action at an appropriate moment.

Official disclosure that Italy was shipping fresh troops to Libya near French North African holdings, increased the governments' Mediterranean war at a critical stage in the Spanish war.

Not Sponsoring Terms
The prime minister announced that Britain had ceased to sponsor any terms for ending the Spanish conflict. He said his government had made mediation efforts after the fall of Barcelona, but that it did not "consider it advisable at present to take the responsibility of sponsoring any particular terms of settlement."

He mentioned both Italy's undertaking to get out of Spain at the end of the war and Adolf Hitler's promise at the Munich conference to "withdraw German volunteers whenever other countries were prepared to do the same."

Pressed by Lieutenant-Commander H. H. Fletcher, labor member, to say whether he regarded Hitler's assurance as formal and binding, the premier cautiously replied: "I regard it as an expression of his intention at the time he spoke to me."

Reich Labor Is Subject to Draft

Any Worker May Be Called to Perform Tasks Important to State

Berlin—(AP)—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering today empowered the federal labor office and its sub-departments throughout Germany to draft any worker who might be needed to perform tasks deemed urgent and of importance to the welfare of the state.

Under his decree, every inhabitant of Germany, foreigners excepted, may be drafted for whatever form of labor that Goering, as dictator of the four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency, deems necessary.

Men or women holding jobs must be given leave of absence immediately by their employers when drafted.

If a task prescribed by the labor office acting under Goering's instructions is of indefinite duration, the person drafted is regarded as having resigned from his former position.

But if he is drafted only for a stated period, the employer must keep his job open for him and take him back whenever the labor office's special requirement is filled.

The employer is not compelled to pay wages for the absent period, but the drafted person's wage scale for his new job may not necessarily be the same.

Nazi Germany's teacher acted today to give the reach a canal from the Baltic to the North sea wider than Panama or Suez by the time her latest battleship, the Bismarck, is commissioned two years hence.

Chancellor Hitler's decision to have the historic Kiel canal widened to "make possible the parallel traffic of the largest types of ships" was seconded by the sweeping decree of Goering.

Strong Popular Support for National Defense Measures, American Legion Chief Says

Indianapolis—(AP)—People of the United States stand more solidly behind measures for their country's defense now than probably at any other time since the World War.

National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick of the American Legion said today.

Chadwick, back at national headquarters here from a tour of the midwest and east, said the current national defense week—between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays—found the nation's defensive morale the highest in 20 years.

The reason is, he said, that Americans have seen how Ethiopia, China and Czechoslovakia lost out in dealings with warlike powers having strong military forces.

"The people are conscious of the fact," he observed, "that there are aggressor nations on the face of the earth and that we have to protect our liberties."

But he added, "there is no apparent disposition on their part to inject themselves into other people's affairs."

Chadwick advocated a "force able to turn back aggression" before it ripens into invasion.

The black-haired 44-year-old Seattle lawyer, elected to head the legion last fall, saw as the nation's chief defense need a reservoir of trained manpower.

World war veterans in the legion, he said, themselves past the military service age, have undertaken to see to this need by urging young men to take military training.

Legionnaires make up about a fourth of the 4,000,000 or so veterans still surviving, he said. Their average age is 45—a year over the service limit.

House Told Safety Of U.S. Depends on Britain and France

Georgian Sees Menace if Democracies are Beaten
HEATED DEBATE
Naval Committee Refuses To Eliminate Guam From Bill

Washington—(AP)—The house beat down a Republican attempt today to limit the proposed expansion of the army air corps to 1,000 planes a year, removing the principal obstacle to immediate approval of the bulk of President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 defense program.

By a standing vote announced at 1:19 to 127, the house rejected the limitation amendment offered by Congressman Andrews (R-Ill.).

The action came after House Majority Leader Rayburn (D-Texas) warned his colleagues that conditions in Europe are "more volcanic than in 1914."

Washington—(AP)—The house heard sales of warplanes to foreign nations defended today on the ground that "Americans are safe only so long as England and France stand."

Cracking debate over foreign policy involved in President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 defense program shattered the quiet which had marked the first day's discussions of legislation to authorize the army's share of the program.

Congressman Gifford (R-Mass.) launched the attack on the airplane sales abroad with a declaration that the inference was "dreadfully plain" that the United States was going into an alliance "with somebody."

"Are we building these planes so England and France can get them?" Gifford asked, referring to the proposed construction of 3,302 new planes for the army air corps.

The attack brought further attention to new French contracts for 415 warplanes, which increased to more than 1,200 the number of military aircraft ordered in this country by France and Great Britain in eight months.

Guam Not Excluded
The house naval committee, meanwhile, by a vote of 14 to 5, rejected a move to eliminate the Pacific island of Guam from the naval aviation authorization bill and then approved the measure authorizing $68,400,000 for new and expanded aviation bases.

Congressman Pace (D-Ga.), a member of the house military committee, told the house he thought it was sound to aid England and France build up their defenses because if those democracies fell before the dictators a major bulwark of the United States would be removed.

"It is better to sell England and France planes for their defense," he asked, "than to go to war with a big power to prevent encroachment on this hemisphere?"

Expressing his belief that Hitler is ready to "strike" to regain colonies lost during the World War, Pace asserted the reichsfuehrer was delaying his next move only to complete his submarines to handle the British navy and because of "fear of the United States."

Fears Effect of War
Discussing the possibility of a German victory over France and Britain, Pace said the United States should not forget that such a victory might mean the cession to Germany of the Isle of Bermuda, not far from the United States shore and now owned by Britain.

Asserting that this nation "for selfish reasons" would be forced, eventually, to come to the aid of Canada or Great Britain in an emergency, Pace said:

"I feel sure that the president didn't say our frontier is on the Rhine. In my judgment, he could well have said, 'our first line of defense is England and France.' When we see England and France go down, we are threatened."

While the house debated the national defense bill, its Democratic leaders decided to withhold any further controversial legislation until they can see the effect of the appeal for solidarity at a party conference yesterday.

Asks Higher Limit
Other developments.
Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator, urged the house banking committee to approve legislation to increase the limit on the amount of money that can be borrowed by the federal government.

Illinois Banker Is Given Concurrent Terms in Prison

W. W. Crabb Faces Federal Prison for Forgery, Misuse of Funds

Peoria, Ill.—(AP)—Willis W. Crabb, a year ago a wealthy, mighty small-town banker, today heard himself sentenced to a federal penitentiary to pay for forgery and misappropriation of bank funds approximating $75,000.

Sick and broken by the swift tide of adversity unloosed when his pretty daughter-in-law was killed in his Delavan, Ill., mansion last March, the dapper ousted bank president was sentenced by Federal Judge J. Leroy Adair to two concurrent terms of four years each.

Crabb's attorneys pleaded nolo contendere, a surprise maneuver in which sworn testimony was waived and the judge was left to make his ruling upon the statements of prosecution and defense attorneys.

The former banker's co-defendant James G. Bailey, a Delavan stock feeder and relative of the Crabb family, will be permitted to apply for probation under a similar plea.

Judge Adair said, and the application will be granted if investigation showed he warranted it.

The ousted president of the Tazewell County National bank sat calmly in the front of the courtroom as attorneys stated the case to the judge. His attractive young second wife, Catherine, did not appear with him but watched the proceedings through a window.

Senate Committee Gives Approval to 11 Appointments

Washington—(AP)—The senate commerce committee approved today 11 appointments by President Roosevelt to aviation and maritime boards and sent them to the senate for expected confirmation.

Those approved today were: Clinton M. Hester of Montana as administrator of the CAA, and the following as members: Edward J. Noble of Connecticut, to serve through 1940; Harilee Branch of Georgia, to serve through 1943; Robert H. Hinckley of Utah, through 1943; Oswald Ryan, Indiana, through 1942; and G. Grant Mason, Jr., District of Columbia, through 1941.

The maritime labor appointments were: Robert W. Bruere, New York; Louis Bloch, California, and Claude E. Seaborn, Colorado, all to serve until June 22, 1941.

Chairman Bailey said appointment of Sumpter Smith of Alabama, as one of the three members of a special air safety board was approved subject to favorable action by the Alabama senators, Bankhead and Hill, both Democrats.

Bill Would Limit Number of Colonels In State to 5,000

Madison—(AP)—State Senator Philip Nelson (D), of Maple, a member of the American Legion and a critic of Governor Heil's appointments of colonels on his military staff, introduced a joint resolution today providing that the number of colonel appointments by the governor shall not exceed 5,000.

On motion of Senator Harry Bolens (D), Fort Washington, the resolution was referred to the committee on legislative procedure. Nelson said it should be reported out for a "moot" session of the senate.

A total of 57 colonels have been named by Governor Heil.

Besides the group limitation, Nelson's resolution provides that no more than 10 per cent of the 5,000 shall be over 200 pounds each; that no more than 2,000 shall be residents of a city of the first class (Milwaukee); that no more than 1,000 shall be members of the same club or society.

Nelson "feels that ratios for all such colonels shall not exceed: one per 25,000 of population; one per 100,000 of bonded 90 proof whisky; and one per day of select food for each [per day]."

Assembly Passes Bill For More Supervisors

Madison—(AP)—A bill allowing cities to increase their representation on county boards without increasing the number of aldermen was passed by the assembly and sent to the senate today by a vote of 53 to 32. The measure was introduced by Mark S. Catlin, Jr., (R) of Appleton.

Town Meeting Adopts Anti-Shorts Ordinance

Provincetown, Mass.—(AP)—Irrked by enactment of an "anti-shorts" ordinance a group of Provincetown citizens today said they intended to force the arrest of high school basketball teams—both boys and girls—the next time they appear in uniform, in order to institute a test case.

The ordinance, adopted at town meeting Monday night, decreed that shorts in public places in this summer attire "must be covered by garments reaching 'at least to the knees'."

Budget Bill Due For Rough Passage Before It Passes

Important Amendments Sure to be Voted by State Legislature

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—As the bill administration's voluminous budget bill was distributed and digested today, it became clear that notwithstanding party discipline in both houses, the executive will have the utmost difficulty in securing legislative approval of the $66,550,000 appropriation measure without amendments altering it in significant passages. One of the features of the budget bill as it now lies in legislators' desks is a provision—successfully turned down by special interests in previous legislatures—which would allow the three-man emergency board to cut all appropriations, including pension, school and other aids, up to 25 per cent if lack of revenues dictate it.

Organized To Fight
Organized to fight that clause are the schoolmen, the cities, towns, villages and counties of the state, the highway contractors and local highway officials, teachers, and others who have struggled for years to get state aid appropriations up to their present level.

The battle will be especially determined since the governor's appropriation recommendations for aids contain many cuts from the previous biennial level, and very few increases. Some of his recommendations for aids call for identical appropriations, although the government costs for which the aids are intended are increasing steadily.

It can be forecast with certainty that a flock of amendments to the budget bill will be proposed. Among the first will be amendments to strike out the clause allowing the emergency board to reduce school, highway, and pension aids.

Such amendments were successfully introduced in the 1937 legislature when Governor LaFollette attempted the same idea. It is worth recalling that the LaFollette control over the legislature was considerably more effective than Heil's is likely to be.

Vote More Money
Moreover, other amendments are being prepared which will revise the governor's recommendations for aids upward. Among them are social security aids, which the governor proposes to leave at the present level in spite of the fact that the number of dependents on the social security rolls is rising steadily.

Non-partisan sources, including the localities that will be faced with making up the differences or cutting grants if the state's share of the costs falls short of what is needed, are pointing out that unless the governor's social security budget is increased, pensioners—old-age and dependent children—particularly—will face the inevitability of smaller monthly checks, which is a far cry from the pledges made by all political parties during the last campaign.

It is interesting to note that the Republican administration, while it discarded some, has retained other features of the LaFollette budget. One of them is the provision for paring down appropriations by the emergency board.

Critics Have often pointed to the power of the emergency board to revise appropriations as an improper delegation of power by the legislature. The legislature, it has been argued, is responsible for raising sufficient taxes to meet the appropriations which it authorizes. Local government, it has been pointed out, are also compelled to make appropriations and make estimates of receipts, but they do not employ the device of an emergency board to correct their guesses if they are inaccurate.

The answer is that the state government is unable to borrow funds to cover temporary deficiencies, let alone its revenues must equal its appropriations. And in the last two years, and probably during the next two, it is exceedingly hard to estimate state government receipts because the major source of the state's income fluctuates in almost direct ratio to general business conditions.

Therefore, it is likely that the emergency board's power to cut certain appropriations will remain. But it will probably be successfully argued that any savings should come from the cost of the state government itself, not out of its obligations to cities, villages, towns and counties for highways, schools and pensions.

Game Body Accepts Land From Counties

Madison—The state conservation commission announced today it has tentatively accepted 78,461 acres of land offered by 17 counties for entry under the state forest crop law.

Previous holdings totalled 1,876,744 acres. ## Callahan States Heil Budget Won't Meet Needed Costs

Claims Allotments at Least $500,000 Short Of Requirements

Madison—(P)—John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction, informed the joint legislative finance committee studying the state budget yesterday that Governor Heil's appropriations were insufficient to meet the state's share of educational costs.

Callahan said the budget allotments were approximately $500,000 to $600,000 short of requirements for meeting state aids, and that in the event the legislature did not supply the difference, additional tax burdens must be carried by the local governing units and school districts. Even under present allotments, he said, the state has failed to supply its share of the revenue.

Callahan estimated that the $200,000 annual appropriation for county supervising teachers was about $40,000 short of the amount needed and $25,000 under the sum allowed under the LaFollette administration. Another appropriation of $200,000 for transportation and tuition of pupils, he said, was about $75,000 short—$40,000 less than under LaFollette.

Gives Figures
Annual appropriations of $5,200,000 for elementary schools and $1,385,000 for district and union free high schools are short about $300,000 and $1,115,000 respectively, he added. The recommended allotment for the same aid under the last biennium was $5,500,000 and $1,630,000.

Total educational aid supplied by the state for the next two years is about $15,834,000 as against $20,688,000 requested and $16,300,000 spent during the past two years. This is exclusive of the University of Wisconsin.

The county boards association offered amendments to raise the sum set aside for county supervising teachers from $200,000 to $230,000 and to boost the $225,000 for county normal schools to $255,000.

About $85,000 over the appropriation of $143,000 for day schools for blind and deaf students was asked because the $4 weekly allowance for the students' board and room was insufficient, Callahan said. He asked that it be raised to $5 or $6.

Hambrecht Testifies
Callahan said he would be able to operate on an annual budget of $140,000 for administration and minor educational activities.

George P. Hambrecht, director of the department of vocational and adult education, who was allowed $255,000 instead of $445,000 yearly, said he needed the extra funds to provide a greater variety of training and reduce local costs.

His budget of $129,000 for administration, rehabilitation and teacher training under the last administration was pared down to $98,000.

Chairman Fred S. Hunt of the public service commission said his department could function on its recommended budget of $185,000, but would need additional funds if the Milwaukee river flood control survey is to be completed and if the commission is to continue printing railroad maps. Both duties are required under existing statutes. Many of the commission's expenses are defrayed through the collection of fees and taxes.

A request of $729,000, made by the bureau of engineering for the next two years was cut to $699,000, and the $4,000 allowed the Portage levee commission was $1,000 less than the amount asked. The deep waterways commission's request for $4,500 was met in full in the governor's budget.

Next Pope Must Carry Big Burden in Fight for Peace

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York—(P)—The pontiff who ascends the throne of St. Peter in Pius XI—the pope of peace—must assume an international burden so great that the world scarcely sensed its magnitude until the aged man who had carried it was forced to lay it down.

Recognition of the part played by his holiness in the world's problems is seen in the fact that his death for the moment stilled the bitter wrangling that was going on between great European nations. The shock made them quit talking war for a bit.

Recognition is seen too in the eager speculation in many capitals regarding the identity of the next pope.

Amongst his problems, the new pope will encounter several which have been bones of contention between the church and the fascist state. Some of these involve policies which are both fascist and German nazis. Here are the chief issues:

The Jewish question broke in Italy last July when fascism proclaimed its doctrine of race, affirming (as had the nazis) the superiority of the Aryans and decreeing against intermixture with non-Aryan elements, such as Jews.

The church, declining to subscribe to any philosophy that erects barriers between races, took issue immediately with fascism, as it had with Herr Hitler's Aryan theories. But that wasn't the half. Last fall new fascist laws were promulgated making marriages between Jews and Italian Aryans illegal. The Vatican claims that this violates the concordat of 1929 which recognized church marriages as having the full force of civil ceremonies. The church maintains its right to marry whom it will.

Then there was the fascist government's opposition to the Catholic Action. This is a layman's organization aiming at educating the social, civic, moral and religious conscience of the Italian nation. The government said the Action was meddling in politics, which was denied.

Another grave problem revolves about the fascist youth movement. The Vatican says that this trespasses on the church's prerogative to look after youth's moral instruction in school, as provided for in the concordat.

The senate by Walter J. Rush (P), Neillville, and the assembly by Otto A. Vogel (P), Manitowish, and Arthur D. Kelly (P), St. Croix.

They provide that when the voters of a municipality decide by referendum to operate their own utility no certificate of convenience and necessity from the public service commission shall be required regardless whether an existing utility is furnishing service.

Referendum Bill
Assemblyman Vogel introduced a joint resolution calling for a constitutional amendment which will permit the electorate to propose and repeal laws by initiative and referendum. This measure has been offered at previous sessions of the legislature.

Other new bills introduced today include:

By Brown (R), Oshkosh, and Nelson (P), Maple: Continuing until March 1, 1941, the present law creating county mediation board to act in mortgage foreclosure cases.

By Gettelman: Establishing a chiropractic ward at the Winnebago State hospital and creating the office of chiropractic superintendent.

By Miller (R), Muscodia: Exemplifying cooperative associations from the operations of the state labor relations law.

Storm Over Codes Breaks at Hearing On Tri-Party Bill

Opponents Call Them "Legalized Racket to Gouge Public"

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Code legislation covering the service trades and providing for fixed prices and hours in those trades was attacked as a "legalized racket" to "gouge the public," and defended as the only means to keep small tradesmen in business and off the relief rolls at a long public hearing before the assembly judiciary committee Tuesday afternoon.

Disputants who appeared to argue a reenactment of the code bill differed in interpreting the stand of the head of the Republican administration on the question of fair trades codes. A spokesman for the beauticians quoted from what he said was a speech by Governor Heil favoring the codes. John L. Youngs, a member of Heil's party and assemblyman from Oconto county, declared that he is convinced that "the governor is not so hot for codes today. I am definitely sure of that."

Would Rewrite Law
Hearing was held on a bill by Assemblymen Tehan, Murray and Alfonsi, representing all three parties, which would rewrite the present code law with slight modifications.

It would repeal the present law, but write in its stead new practice standards for the cleaners and dyers, barbers, cosmeticians, and shoe rebuilders, four of the five trades now covered by codes, under the administration of the department of agriculture and markets. The law is now administered by a separate code department.

Heading the opponents of the bill was Senator A. J. Connors of Barron, a Progressive newcomer to the legislature, who barked that he "represents the poor public which is being gouged by these legalized rackets." Connors is sponsoring a bill in the upper house to wipe out codes entirely.

He charged that many barbers who are opposed to the code are hesitant about saying so publicly because their union may fine them for opposing the organization. He pointed out that similar legislation has repeatedly been ruled invalid by the courts in other states.

Oconto's Youngs said that he spoke for every tradesman in his county who is covered by the codes. He said they are opposed because the law "takes away our personal liberty and our right to make an honest living."

Youngs who is a barber at home agreed with other opponents that the codes have reduced the customer volume in tradesmen's shops, and hampered business efficiency.

He said that "clippers and barber chairs in private homes are doing much more business than we do on Main street under the code. Barbers aren't so dumb. They know what prices to charge to get business," he said.

Reduced Business
Benjamin Galin, representing a group of Milwaukee anti-code beauty shop owners, said that the codes have reduced business volume 50 per cent, employment at least as much, has "milked the industry of $35,000 to $50,000 in fees," has given a "monopoly to the larger and more elaborate shops," oppressed the small neighborhood shops, and been unfair to the consuming public because of the lack of differentials between urban and rural prices.

Proponents of the code, including a large number of barbers, declared unanimously that the codes are necessary to keep them in business and to protect them against "cut-throat competition."

Assemblyman Harold A. Lytle of Green Bay, a Democrat and a barber who led the fight for the enactment of the code law, said that he was not so sure of that today.

GLOBE TROTTER
Stanley Osborne, famed adventurer and globe trotter will address Appleton High school students in a lecture program Thursday morning in the school auditorium. Osborne, who originates from Australia, will talk mainly about his native land, its customs and animals.

ment of the 1937 code law which will expire unless reenacted on April 1, presented a survey made by the state fair trade practices commission which he said shows that a heavy majority of all the tradesmen now doing business under the code law favor its continuance.

Officers of the Journeymen's and the Master Barbers' associations also appeared. They bewailed "chiseling" of the pre-code days, and said that 89 per cent of Wisconsin barbers are for the codes. John Billie, of the Journeymen, and a Manitowish barber, said that the code helped 700 Wisconsin barbers to get off the relief rolls.

A. E. O'Brien, of the cosmetologists, said that he spoke for 1800 beauty shops in the state. He also quoted the survey made by the department.

David Sigman of Two Rivers Wisconsin Federation of Labor organizer and former Manitowish county assemblyman, registered the federation in favor of the code bill. Lytle said that petitions bearing "thousands of names of consumers in favor of the codes" will be presented to the legislature. E. W. Peck, of the Cleaners and Dyers association, deposited a 10 pound bundle of petitions which he said contained 15,000 signatures of consumers in favor of the codes.

Madison—(P)—Constitutionality of the state beauty parlor code regulating prices, wages and hours was challenged in an amended complaint filed in Dane county circuit court yesterday by Wayne L. Edwards, West Allis shop owner, the Milwaukee Accredited Schools of Beauty Culture, and the Madison Comfort Beauty shop.

Suit was originally filed last year, asking that the code be set aside, but the court ordered amendment of the complaint after the defendants filed a motion to strike several counts as superfluous.

The complaint charges the code is unconstitutional because it was adopted at the 1937 special session of the legislature without having been included in Governor LaFollette's call. The code law expires April 1.

Jackson, Lincoln Days Vehicle for Political Debates

Attacks Made on Major Parties at Birthday Dinners, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Whatever else the political parties may have learned from each other in recent years, it is apparent that Lincoln day and Jackson day dinners, besides being a new means of explaining campaign chests now have become instrumentalities for the release of invective and criticism.

Time was when the birthday of these two great American presidents were honored by recollection of their individual achievements. Now the custom is to use the birthdays as a vehicle for mutual attack by the major parties.

What is particularly absent in these party gatherings is a constructive note. The Jackson day dinners were occupied, to be sure, with a call to harmony inside the Democratic party, but the principal tirades were against the Republicans. Similarly, this week, the Republicans answer back with all the barbs of which their orators are capable.

As for the innocent bystanders—the public—who have little interest in politics as a game or the devices used to arouse followers to party banners, there is disappointment over the failure of either major party to develop a program of hope and encouragement in these days of national and international doldrums.

Bold statements are made. Whether it is the Democratic criticism that the Republicans have no sense of social responsibility or the Republican counter-attack that an unbalanced budget is creating economic stagnation, the average observer does not see on the horizon any statesmanship which is bold enough to throw overboard the party recriminations and point the way to national progress.

Possibly it is good party strategy to rally the morale of the party workers by these dinners, which help to overcome party deficits, but, so far as giving the morale of the nation any inspiration, they are valueless.

There are, of course, those in both political parties who think that, if only the government will merely take hands off its strong regulatory drive and stop "spending," the nation will soon recover its economic prosperity. Strangely enough, this is not the real view of a majority of both houses of congress, nor would it be that of a majority of the Republicans if they actually had to vote on such an issue.

The truth is that, for political purposes, it is considered desirable to attack "deficit financing," taxation and excessive regulation by the government, but even if all these three things were eliminated as arguments through revised policies by the administration, there are few here in either party who would then venture to underwrite the nation's prosperity and guarantee the immediate restoration of 10,000,000 persons in jobs.

WPA Workers
Even the relatively simple problem of finding jobs for the 3,000,000 on WPA has brought no plan from anybody inside or outside the government. The belief that these 3,000,000 human beings can be turned out of the relief rolls and that they will somehow find jobs is held by some legislators, to be sure, but nobody with a knowledge of economic trends is ready to predict that any such number of workers can be absorbed in the next six months or even a year or two.

This has nothing to do, of course, with the desirable logic of starting a cut-down so as to cause some of the WPA workers to take jobs that may be offered them and with other remedial influences which would flow from a start in the direction of real economy. But it has everything to do with the fact that neither the Republicans nor the Democrats have thought through the major problems involved in the economic disturbances through which America is now passing.

Hoover Statements
It is significant that political circumstances alter points of view. Former President Hoover knows world economics about as well as anybody in public life. His thesis in 1932 was that a world-wide upheaval had upset American economic stability. He was right then, in the view of many of us. But today his principal grievances are leveled against the Roosevelt administration as such and he does not point out those policies which will help to restore the world-wide trade and the other factors which used to contribute to American prosperity. His speech at the Lincoln day dinner gave the impression that he was joining, in spirit at least, the isolationist groups in America who believe in self-sufficiency, high tariffs, and concentration by America on her own domestic economy irrespective of the fact that world markets are needed and that a capital flow outward to Central and South America would help.

Miss Jacquelyn GlouDEMANS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace GlouDEMANS, Garfield avenue, is confined to her home on account of illness.

Herman J. Stark, Peter J. Van restore orders for American manufacturers and producers.

So another series of political debates goes on, with the realities sidetracked and the personalities of the political scene held up to criticism on the theory that the average man will see a considerable difference between the ins and the outs and will merely go on exchanging at elections one for the other in the blind hope that somehow and someday the solutions to our economic ills will appear automatically from some still unknown source of magical power.

Richberg Faces Big Task in Settling Mexican Oil Fight

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—The policy of making faces over the back fence was getting neither side anywhere in the long impasse over the seizure of American oil properties by the Mexican government. So both sides have decided to try to negotiate a working arrangement.

Neither side would consider any proposition that the other was willing to advance. Continuing for months, this situation has cast a heavy shadow over the good-neighbor policy of the United States at a most embarrassing time. The oil companies had lost their properties and the Mexican government was getting very little out of them. The result was that not much was being salvaged out of the situation except principles. So both sides have decided to ease off on irreconcilable principles and try to get something out of the properties.

After long hesitation, the American oil companies involved, which include Standard of New Jersey and California and Sinclair, plus the British interests represented in Dutch Shell, have agreed to send Donald R. Richberg, former head of NRA, to Mexico City with authority to negotiate with the Mexican government. After a short business trip to California, Richberg will go to Mexico, arriving there about March 1. Raymond Clapper, the Cardenas government invited him to go to Mexico on this mission. In addition, has the blessing of the administration here. In fact the administration has been active in bringing it about.

Not only the state department but Roosevelt himself is anxious to end the impasse. Mexico's seizure of the oil properties made the United States look like, not a good neighbor, but an easy sucker. Yet any strong-arm action by this government, such as Secretary Hull sometimes feels would be justified, would backfire all over Latin America, where it would be represented in a way to make our good-neighbor policy look like pious hypocrisy.

Mexico Encounters Plenty of Trouble
Mexico has had difficult going since seizing these foreign oil properties nearly a year ago. The British government brandied confiscation roughly and treats the oil out of Mexico as stolen goods. Normal markets for this oil have been closed to the Mexican government, which has been forced to peddle it mostly through barter deals with the hard-pressed dictator countries. Without American technicians to operate the properties, the Mexicans have imported some German engineers. That has been expensive, as has been the loss of taxes and payrolls from the American companies. Internal difficulties are increasing in anticipation of the presidential election in Mexico next year.

The Mexican government can't, or won't, for political reasons, return the oil properties outright to their former owners. American companies have refused to recognize the confiscation by accepting promises of compensation, knowing any way that Mexico cannot, as the properties are now operated, make good on any real compensation, even if it were possible to arrive at any fair valuation of the properties, which is doubtful. Would you include past exploration expenses on dry holes? The companies would. Would you include the value of the oil lying under the producing wells? Mexico wouldn't. All talk of this kind was futile. Each side stood on its principles and the principles were far apart. They could go on standing on these principles through eternity without coming any closer together.

Neither Is Getting Any Benefits Now
Richberg's job — and wangling through an NRA code was sandpile play compared with the job of bringing the Mexican government and the oil companies into agreement on anything — will be to find an operating formula that will forestall about the conflicting principles and proceed to deal practically with the realities of the situation, which are:

1. The Mexican government has the properties but is drawing little from them except trouble.
2. The foreign oil companies have lost their properties and are getting nothing out of them.
3. When one side has the properties but doesn't know how to run them, and the other side doesn't have the properties but does know how to run them, then the practical thing to do is to strike a bargain which will yield something to both sides.

The Frontiers of the United States

It will not be easy to regard the occupation of the island of Hainan by the Japanese Navy as no more than incident of the war in China. With this strategic outpost to the West and the naval bases in the mandated islands to the East, the Philippines are surrounded. But what is even more important, at Hainan Japan obtains an advanced base within 1,500 miles of Singapore.

The timing of this new aggression cannot be ignored: The Japanese have acted at the moment when the Spanish civil war is ending and the diplomatic struggle for the control of the Mediterranean and the eastern Atlantic is approaching a crisis. It has been the Japanese method to begin each new phase of conquest by testing out the resistance that might be offered. Thus before the Japanese decided to invade China proper in the summer of 1937, they tested out the Russians by sinking a Russian gunboat on the Amur river. When the Russians showed they were incapable of doing anything, the Japanese began their invasion of Northern China. A year later, that is last summer, when the Czech crisis was developing in Europe, the Japanese made a test of the Russian power. There was a Russo-Japanese battle on the Manchurian border. The test convinced them that they need not fear the Russians, and so, while Britain and France were pre-occupied in Europe, the Japanese invaded Southern China, took Canton, and struck down the British power at Hong Kong.

Testing Resistance Before Making Attack
Once again they are, it would seem, testing out the resistance before making another great advance. This time they have seized a strategic island which lies within the French sphere of influence and is of extraordinary importance to the whole British position in the East Indies and even in Australia. They have chosen a moment when the naval power of Great Britain and France is anxiously preoccupied in European waters.

Their action places the British and French in an ugly dilemma. If the British send enough ships to the Far East to check the Japanese advance, they will become too weak in Europe to check the Italian advance which would then, because the risks were reduced, almost certainly obtain much more active backing from Germany. And if they do not send ships to the Far East, the Japanese are in a position to establish a naval control of the Western Pacific, and to command the immense resources of the Dutch East Indies, the Philippines, and Australia. Once established in this vital center of world power, the Japanese Empire cannot be dislodged without a great and exhausting war.

Which way one looks at it, the situation is too serious to be regarded with indifference by the United States. The seizure of Hainan at the moment when Britain and France are so vitally concerned about Morocco and Morocco and the independence of Spain does not have the air of coincidence. It looks very much like concerted action.

For that reason it makes the situation in Europe much more critical. If the Japanese war party demonstrates at Hainan that the road to Singapore is open, the hesitation of the Japanese moderates will almost certainly be overcome. The chances of a major military-diplomatic offensive on three fronts, in Northern Europe, in the Mediterranean, and in the Far East—will be measurably increased.

Might Develop Into A Difficult Situation
If that offensive is successful, the European Fascist powers will have broken through into the Atlantic establishing themselves in Spain and in Africa, and the Japanese will be masters of Singapore, which is one of the two controlling points, the other being Panama, in the Pacific. The United States which has only one navy, though it has to defend itself in two oceans, will then pan's response to the invitation to consult and negotiate should then determine whether or not we actually proceed to fortify Guam. U. S. Should Clarify Position in Europe

At the same time, we should clarify our position in Europe by making it plain that, having scrupulously refused to help either side in the Spanish civil war, we regard it as an American interest that Spain should be an independent and neutral power. This is what General Franco declares to be his interest, and there is no reason to doubt the sincerity of his professions. He can unite his country, and reconstruct it, only if Spain is able to disentangle itself from European-power politics and to enjoy a long period of peace.

Though General Franco needed Italian help to win the civil war, he now needs British and French help to win and to preserve Spanish independence. He will get that help. It is an American interest, as a matter of basic naval security, that he should get that help. For with Spain independent, the dangers of a European war would at once be greatly reduced and the security of the Atlantic Ocean greatly improved. The most effective way to contribute to this result would be to open our markets in war, as well as in peace, to the governments—which now include General Franco's—which have a vital interest in maintaining the existing naval position in the two oceans.

The alternative to such a two-fold diplomatic action in the two oceans is not to do nothing and to pretend to believe that our frontier is at the twelve-mile limit. Our frontier is not at Hankow. But our frontier is in both the great

Slippery Condition Of Roads Calls for Extra Precautions

The slippery condition of streets and highways calls for extra precaution of the motorist behind the wheel. Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad warned today. He lists the following suggestions for safe winter driving: "Keep your speed down to the point where you're sure you can stop whenever necessary. "When stopping, delay using the clutch until after you have applied the brakes gently. In this way, your engine will help bring the car to a stop. "Keep the windshield clear. Wipe the entire windshield so that you won't be turning corners blind. "Keep at least one window of the car open slightly. This will help to prevent fogged windshields and will eliminate any danger of carbon monoxide collecting in the car.

"Watch out for pedestrians, especially children. Always be ready to expect the unexpected and be ready to stop."

MARRIED WOMEN AT WORK

The Wisconsin Supreme Court recently decided that a young woman teacher who married did not thereby provide a cause for her discharge by the Board of Education. This ruling is based strictly upon the language of an act passed by our legislature insuring to teachers the continuity of their positions unless some "cause" is furnished for their discharge.

It is to be noted that Assemblyman Fitzsimmons has introduced a measure before the Legislature prohibiting the state or any of its subdivisions clear down to the smallest school district from employing any woman in any capacity if her husband has a certain income. Mr. Fitzsimmons supports his measure with records from the Tax Commission showing we have in Wisconsin 2,582 married women working for the state or one of its subdivisions and with an average income of about 80 per cent of their husbands.

It is no doubt assumed that the principle of the Fitzsimmons measure can be forced no further than public positions since private employers are nowhere made the subject of regulation in the constitution in regard to the sex or marital condition of those they employ.

Of course women's organizations throughout the state are bestirring themselves upon the question of equal rights. That is natural.

But the problem does not depend upon the question of equal rights. It does not depend upon the advisability of married women holding positions and, to some extent, neglecting their homes and their children. The demand to exclude married women from employment is taking on the shrill notes of necessity. And necessity knows little of logic and less of reason.

The problem is to find positions for young women fresh from training schools of various sorts, ready and eager to participate in life's affairs but without any opportunity offered them to earn a livelihood. And the chances are that conditions in this regard will even grow worse with the passage of time, that is, more married women will hold positions, public and private, than even today.

This will result, we believe, because the obtaining of a good job continues to be a critical matter. Why should a young woman teacher, for instance, surrender her position with all the rights that have accrued to her including the precious right of keeping that job when she may not be able to know how long her newly-found husband can keep his? Must we not expect that the constant number of vacancies known in the past among women school teachers and created by their marriage will cease and our teaching personnel become practically a married woman's affair?

The fault goes back to original sin. So long as national conditions are created of the sort which prevent industry and business from functioning normally so long must we expect to be faced with these problems,—or even graver ones.

THE POWER STRUGGLE

There would still be no peace, and less progress than there should be, if the struggle now ending between public and private ownership in the Tennessee Valley were carried into other regions. Public sentiment generally, while approving occasional experiments in public ownership and operation, still prefers private operation on principle.

There is great interest in the development and wide distribution of electric power. We really seem at last to be entering the Electrical Age. The production and use of power in this clean and convenient form are almost limitless. But its full enjoyment by this generation depends on peaceful cooperation, instead of warfare between government and private enterprise.

The country as a whole is hungry for electricity. This is one economic field where much of the United States is still in the pioneer age. All the power that can be economically produced from falling water may be but a bucketful compared with what the nation would use if it were supplied cheaply enough. And in this industry cost and selling price diminish very rapidly with volume of production.

If it is natural to have public production and distribution of hydroelectric power, it is also natural to have private manufacture of power from coal. All that can properly be demanded in this field is to satisfy the public interest, and encourage domestic and industrial consumption, by the lowest rates consistent with a reasonable profit.

"I REFUSE TO ANSWER"

Back of every crook stands a crooked lawyer.

Crime can only be made attractive to its participants through the employment of those skilled but unscrupulous men of the Bar who are content to sit down with thugs and plan their escape by building up a "defense," or through that other method of bold and outright bribery of jurors.

Not long ago Hubert Heintz was arrested as a hold-up man at Chicago. In the daily grist of the courts in the Windy City his arrest would have gone unnoticed were he not the son of a wealthy man. Witnesses who recognized Heintz at the hold-up were still somewhat non-plussed in trying to identify him because, as subsequently developed, his hair had been bleached between the day of the robbery and his arrest.

But finally Heintz broke, probably due to the advice of his father, and revealed that his lawyers told him what to do, and how to do it, and even arranged for the beauty treatment on his hair. It is a matter of the utmost importance that such men be brought to trial and severely punished, if convicted. They must not only be put behind the bars but they should be driven out of the legal profession to prevent a recurrence of their acts.

But in proving the offense against them it is important and may be necessary to get the testimony of the young woman who did the bleaching. It is claimed that she first confessed that the lawyers engaged her but when it came to going upon the witness stand she declared, "I refuse to answer because the answer might incriminate me." This, in her case, is probably a legitimate answer because if she had reason to believe that she was bleaching the hair of a fugitive she committed an offense herself.

How long are we going to keep in the constitution that ridiculous provision which this young woman has invoked, and which has already freed so many rascals? But what time have our law-makers to devote to even so important a measure while there are canals to be dug and federal judges to be appointed and WPA lists to be made out?

REGRETFUL MILLINER

The most ingenious explanation of women's so-called hats has just come from that internationally known designer and mastermind of millinery, Mr. John Fredricks. He says pitifully that people, particularly husbands, have been blaming him for those hats. He has almost been afraid to walk down the street undisguised for fear some outraged male might beat him up. And it was all just a horrible, horrible mistake.

It all began one time when he was sitting in his New York shop making hats, "sewing them with my own hands," he says. "They were miniature hats, and of many different kinds. "There were 300 of them," Mr. John continues. (He prefers to use only his first name.) "I created them to show millinery styles down the ages. My idea was to make the collection as authentic as possible and display it at the New York World's Fair.

"Somebody in Paris got wind of the fact that I was working on miniature hats. I was, but I didn't intend anybody to wear 'em."

Alas! The Parisian pirates stole those hats, and first thing anybody knew the women were wearing them. And that was that! Well, it's a charming story, and evidence that even their creator knows those hats call for an apology.

GROUNDS FOR ACTION

An editorial writer of the New York Post has been reading various reports such as the New York Times weekly index of business activity, the February monthly letter of the National City Bank of New York and a recent statement of the National Conference Board. He found so many cheerful items that he concluded recovery had been "sneaking up on us on gum-shoes." It's time now for somebody to yell "Surprise!" and shock people out of their unfounded gloom. Here are a few of the discoveries reported:

Business activity has reached 92.3 as compared with 82.2 a year ago.

Electric power output is up. Car loadings and automobile production are defying usual seasonal trends by staying at higher levels than expected.

The building outlook is good: building figures in December reached the highest level in nearly nine years. The retail trade prospect is satisfactory. Expenditures on advertising already reflect improved conditions. Machine tool orders have increased. A few good-sized orders for rails and rolling stock have appeared.

The "cumulative forces of the trade cycle," says the National City Bank's letter, "should be toward recovery." It is time for action.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York — Two remarkable Theatrical talents current on Broadway are Beatrice Lillie and Ethel Waters — one an English Lady born in Canada, the other a brown-skinned Pennsylvanian who never acted a dramatic role prior to her appearance this season as Hagar in "Mamba's Daughters."

The satirical genius of Auntie Bea has always delighted New York audiences, but never before has she shown such marvelous foot-light technique as she is currently doing in Noel Coward's "Set to Music." Her singing of a Coward song entitled "Weary of It All" is to my mind, the finest example of sheer talent in "putting over a number" that the stage has seen in this decade.

Ethel Waters' performance in the negro melodrama, "Mamba's Daughters," can be called magnificent without stretching the meaning of the word. Her success in the role of an ignorant, simple Charleston negress is probably best explained by her own comment to an interviewer the night the show opened. "I'm no actress," she said. "That was the impression first nighters got; that Ethel Waters wasn't acting. For two and a half hours she WAS the character she portrayed. There have been few such remarkable characterizations on the Broadway Stage.

Enoch Light's 'Screwballs'

The members of Enoch Light's orchestra, who provide luncheon and dinner music at the Taft, have formed an exclusive backstage organization called the "Screwball Club." In order to be eligible, each member of the band is required to do something crazy and, as Enoch points out, doing crazy things is one of the simplest things a musician does.

A committee awards points to club members, basing them on the calibre of insanity the members commit. Top rating is three points, and at the end of the week the bandsman who has the highest score is formally declared to be the craziest one for that week — a high honor indeed.

The top ranking insanity to date is ascribed to the piano player. The band was playing for lunch the other day and paused for the usual ten minute rest period. The piano player, instead of going backstage for a smoke, got his hat and coat and went home. When Enoch upbraided him that evening, the pianist was very much surprised. The reason, he went home, he said, was because he didn't stop to think it was just a rest period.

Nickels-In-The-Slot

The automatic phonographs are now so well distributed around the country that there is hardly a soft drink parlor between the two oceans without one. The vogue for nickel-in-the-slot machines at home, however, is just beginning.

The first place I saw one was in Hollywood last spring, but there are plenty of them planted in private homes around New York now. Generally they are placed in the Game Room or basement bar. Sometimes there is a sign stating that the nickels fed into the machine are given to some charity. In other cases the profits go to the home owner who finds it a convenient way to save a few dollars and pay for his music.

Radio censorship has contributed indirectly to the success of the automatic phonographs. The radio chains frequently bar songs from the air on the grounds that the lyrics are objectionable. This leaves the field wide open to the nickel-in-the-slot machines which do an augmented business due to the public's characteristic desire to hear a forbidden number to learn first hand why it is forbidden. "Old Man Mose Is Dead" is an example of a song that attained hit proportions without benefit of radio.

Currently one of the most popular recordings in New York is "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," sung by the sensational young Texan, Mary Martin, to Eddy Duchin music. The song is one of the numbers she uses in the show, "Leave It to Me." Bing Crosby's "Just a Kid Named Joe" and the Rudy Vallee-Frances Langford waxings of songs from "The Boys From Syracuse" are other numbers getting loud cheers from record fans.

Eddy Duchin says the most popular song today, according to his radio mail, is "Stardust," with "Stormy Weather" and "Night and Day" ranking next in that order. (Copyright, 1939)

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—An irritated senator once bounded from his seat and with deep sarcasm growled:

"Why don't we adjourn and let the country be run according to the way these public polls say the people want it." The intent was to indicate that a really worthwhile senator would, so-called, at polls and vote his own best judgment. Many of them perhaps do just that. But in our buffaloes about among the congressmen we have gleaned a definite impression that when a reliable public poll indicates the country's sentiment on any particular question, the members pay heed.

"They are governed by polls more than they will admit," said one member.

But most members keep fairly good polls of their own — particularly covering their sections. They have to. It is their staff of life. So it would be fairly to say that every time a member voted according to the Gallup Poll, for instance, he was being governed by the poll.

Connally Says Yes—We asked No. Among others we questioned about polls was Senator Tom Connally of Texas.

"Of course I take these polls into consideration," he said. "I don't rely on them altogether. I use them right along with other information I have as to what my constituents want."

He added, however, that he would not be completely guided by either if they conflicted with his own judgment.

Then, he mentioned the Supreme Court bill.

"When it first came out the majority of the people were for it. It was proposed by the President and they trusted him."

"But I disagreed with it then and I was glad when the polls and my own information indicated the people had come around to our view of the bill." The "our view" to which he referred was that of the majority of the senate which ultimately spelled defeat for the legislation.

Congressmen are fairly well aware of public sentiment even without polls. Probably they always have been. But if they had always been completely subject to its influence we probably would have been a member of the League of Nations.

The 'Little Group'

Even that group of senators whom President Wilson called a "little group of wilful men" will admit now that the country was overwhelmingly for entry into the League of Nations.

This "little group" stalled off a vote on the issue for months while they "carried the issue to the country." They ultimately swayed public sentiment—and a majority of the senate—to their way of thinking, and League adherence was debated.

Moreover some members are skeptical of the complete accuracy of the public polls, particularly upon such questions as "do you favor continued public spending for recovery?" and issues of similar complexity and vagueness.

Some members, like Connally, like the polls as a guide. Others are frankly opposed to them. They suspect that an early publication of a poll of public sentiment on some particular issue might swing a lot of "bandwagon" support to it before the opposing side had a chance to present its case. And it isn't fun for congressmen to have to vote against public opinion.

Place of Strong Arm

Racine — (P) — Racine county's new sheriff, Miles Hulett, conquered a hunger strike at the jail with the aid of aromas from the kitchen. The 26 prisoners balked at assorted cold meat sandwiches one night, and continued their strike the next morning when they were served sweet rolls. They wanted more to eat, they declared.

At noon, the sheriff astutely served pork shanks and sauerkraut. The cooking odors walked the prisoners' stubbornness. They ate heartily.

TEMPTATION

Under the
CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The first bill in the state legislature this session with the formal and acknowledged imprimatur of Governor Heil is a measure proposing a "research bureau," manned by a director chosen by the governor with $15,000 to spend, which would investigate the whole state government, its personnel, expenditures, operations, and results.

That measure will pass, and when it does, the activities of the bureau after it begins to function will be worth watching.

Governor Heil has wounded the pride of a state government personnel by inferring in a public and well-publicized speech that capitol maintenance employees drink liquor and play cards on state time. His private secretary, William C. Maas (now Colonel Maas) didn't heal those wounded sensibilities when he inferred at a banquet and reception given for employees for the governor, but which the governor did not attend, that they littered the capitol with cigarette butts and other refuse.

While those suggestions could have been put a lot more tactfully, it is possible that the executive office is paving the way for a disciplinary overhauling of the state civil service. That such action is long overdue, not even the most loyal friend of the present government personnel can effectively gainsay.

TEN YEARS
To begin with, there has not been a thorough-going examination of personnel policies, including questions of salary and classification, since Gov. Kohler's time, ten years ago.

While a partisan, and vindictive investigation may well damage Wisconsin's proud civil service system among the states (although it should be pointed out that there isn't much to compare it with in other states), a lot of deadwood, overstaffing, inefficient organization and other ingredients of a civil service bureaucracy were bound to develop during that decade. And they did.

Informed capital observers have already guessed whose brain-child the "executive research bureau" is. If their guesses are correct, Heil will have at its service the knowledge of a man who knows more about the personalities and the work of state government departments than almost anyone else who could be named, a man who at budget hearings furnished the new governor with a neatly typewritten case history on every major department head who appeared before him to request funds, who is a "realist" and a competent judge of what the tax-paying public has a right to expect for its money.

This man knows that there are in some state departments more men, and high-salaried men, than are needed. He knows that there are men who take advantage of the fact that the state offices don't have time-clocks. He knows of state employees who have been informally pensioned. Their jobs are on the payroll, but their work is largely invisible. He knows of glaring inequalities in salary classifications.

He knows of the wide variations in traveling expenses allowed, meals ranging from 50 cents to $1.25. However, he knows also that the state has many earnest, faithful

GARGLING

Doctors know that belchers who derive the greatest satisfaction from belching, if possible audibly, are air-swallowers, introspective individuals obsessed with the notion that "gas" in the stomach is dangerous, as it may press on the heart; or perhaps persons with the acid dyspepsia obsession who take enough sodium bicarbonate to insure generation of sufficient gas to serve the purpose. Still, if you derive any comfort or satisfaction from belching, gas or air, there is no great harm in it, provided you do not annoy or disturb the neighbors.

I am sorry I can't say that about gargling. For example, it is clearly contrary to the principles of medicine and surgery to gargle with anything when you have quinsy, abscess around the tonsil. Rest is the best remedy in such a case—until the abscess is properly drained. The less gargling, talking, swallowing or other disturbance of the inflamed throat the better. Gentle use of an agreeable mouth wash may give some comfort, but never a gargle.

If it is unwise to gargle in the presence of quinsy, it would seem questionable whether gargling can do any good in any acute inflammation or sore throat. Certainly no "antiseptic" gargle can check or modify the course of the illness after the germs have invaded the tissues, although an antiseptic gargle may help to prevent spread of the infection to other persons.

Gargles often give relief in conditions other than acute sore throat. Singers and speakers commonly use a suitable gargle to prevent roughness or hoarseness. A good gargle for this purpose may be prepared by dissolving a rounded teaspoonful of powdered alum in about six ounces (1 1/2 teacupfuls) of barley water, in a half pint (8-ounce) bottle, and filling the bottle up with honey flavored with rose extract. The singer or speaker may gargle with this shortly before the program and once or twice in the course of a long program.

Some old time gargles are now happily passing from memory. Among them Dobell's solution, Molton's solution, Seiler's solution—all pretty punk medicine, if you ask me, all well succeeded, I should say, by the simple solutions I have suggested earlier—rounded teaspoonful of boric acid dissolved in pint of boiled water, rounded teaspoonful of table salt dissolved in pint of boiled water, or about one half teaspoonful of tincture of iodine in a pint of water.

The last mentioned iodine solution, is the only one I'd bother to use in any circumstance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cottonseed Oil
Has cottonseed oil value (H. E. G.) Answer—It has nutritive value (calories) equivalent to that of olive oil, corn oil, peanut oil, sesame oil or coconut oil, either of employees. While there are a good number of them who are on the way out of the capitol building when the clock strikes five, he knows also that lights burn at night in many of the civil service departments.

Moreover, he agrees with independent observers who feel that a recapitulation of the state government's man-power once in ten years is not too often.

which yields approximately 200 calories per ounce.

Roquefort Cheese
Has Roquefort cheese any food value, or is it harmful if eaten too often or in too large quantities? I crave it almost every day—I mix a quarter pound imported Roquefort with two packages of cream cheese and cream to thin it out. I suppose it is terribly fattening. (R. C.)

Answer—Roquefort contains less fat, yields less calories than Swiss cheese or American cheese. It is perfectly healthful food to take as regularly and freely as you like.

Mineral Oil

You said there is some reason to question whether mineral oil spray, inhalant or drops used in the nose are, a safe medication. Is mineral oil harmful when taken internally? (Mrs. A. M. K.)

Answer—Mineral oil is not digestible nor absorbable, and hence may accumulate or lodge in the body as a foreign substance. In my judgment the notion that it has any remedial value is wrong. (Copyright, 1939.)

YOUNGSTERS EXAMINE RARE COLLECTION OF BIRD DRAWINGS

Two volumes of drawings of North American birds drawn and hand colored by the noted bird artist, Rex Brasher, whose collection some experts rate as the best since John James Audubon, are the property of Mrs. Carlene E. Sackler, 914 E. Hancock street, and her sister, Mrs. W. H. Nablo, Wausau, who came into their possession recently through their aunt, Miss Agnes Laut, who lived in Connecticut near the Brasher home. Each individual figure in the entire collection is hand colored by the artist himself, because when his 900 plates were finished in 1928 the printer told him it would cost $500,000 to reproduce them in four colors, losing most of the color exactitude. Brasher sat down to make a 100 edition of his 900 plates in 12 volumes, each plate to be reproduced in a black and white photograph, then copied from the original in watercolors by himself. ## Zion Church Brotherhood To Give Play

The stage crew is building a large fireplace for the lounge of the ranch house, and the properties committee has the task of providing bear skin and Indian rugs for the floor as well as deer heads and Indian relics to give the proper atmosphere to the room.

The story of the play is built around Jennifer Lee, an heiress scheduled to marry an earl, who fails to appear at the wedding and turns up at a dude ranch where she obtains a position as secretary to wealthy Mrs. Larimore. John Cameron, one of the owners of the ranch, has had an eventful career. He is really the younger son of the earl of Sherbourne and devoted to his older brother, Clarence. John has assumed the responsibility for a disgraceful act of the heir apparent and has made his way to America accompanied by his friend and partner, Larry Kerrigan.

Meanwhile the old earl dies and Clarence succeeds to the title, but the younger son has lost all contact with his family and when Clarence is killed he knows nothing of it. A distant cousin, Edmund, has succeeded to the title by subterfuge, and it is he that has been killed by Jennifer. His unexpected arrival at the ranch complicated matters until it is discovered that John Cameron is really the earl.

Gerlach Is Accompanist With Choir

WHEN the Lawrence choir sings its home concert Thursday evening at Memorial chapel, the student who will carry the greatest individual responsibility for the performance is Donald Gerlach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gerlach, 702 North Oneida street. Dances from Borodin "Prince Igor" in which the brilliant orchestral transcription provides opportunity for a display of pianist virtuosity.

This season is Gerlach's fourth year as accompanist for the choir. In commenting on the admirable performance given by the Lawrence singers in Milwaukee and Chicago, the critics did not omit mention of his brilliant pianism. A Milwaukee critic wrote, "With the aid of an outstanding accompanist at the piano, Donald Gerlach, a popular arrangement from 'Yeoman of the Guard' by Sullivan and a Choral and Finales from 'The Mastersingers of Nuremberg' brought this enjoyable concert to a close."

Special Body to Rule Courthouse Fund Is Proposed

Board Discusses Administration of New Building Reserve

A committee of trustees to administer the special courthouse building fund was proposed at this morning's session of the county board during a lengthy discussion as to the county's borrowing from the fund and its present management.

After the annual audit was read, Supervisor Lloyd Lang asked why the amount owed the fund by the county increased during the last quarter of last year. It was explained that the money was from matured bonds and interest of money invested from the fund.

John E. Hantschel, county clerk, said that the money was placed in the general fund and that the clerk and board chairman gave notes to the fund so that bookkeeping records would not be confusing. The executive committee has no power to invest the funds unless authorized to do so by the board, he said.

Lang said that this method resulted in $16,700 that should be in the fund going into the general fund and pointed out that the money should have been replaced in the courthouse fund. Chairman Mike Mack explained that through use of this money the county did not have to borrow from the banks and that instead of paying 4 per cent to the banks 3 per cent was paid on the money to the fund.

Makes Proposal
District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr suggested that a special committee be named to administer the fund and the proposal was backed by Supervisor John Bottensek, Dale Bottensek asked that the rumor prevalent in the county, that several years ago the board could not borrow from the fund be explained.

Chairman Mack answered that if any taxpayer of the county would object, the board would not be able to use the money.

The discussion was terminated when the auditor's report was referred to the executive committee and district attorney which it is expected will make some recommendation as to the fund's administration.

County Insurance
Supervisor Thomas Long, Appleton, said that while most of the county's insurance is handled by the Outagamie County Insurance association, there is no discrimination in awarding insurance. The awarding of insurance is a difficult task and the association aids by putting insurance with certain companies and dividing the premium among the members, Long said.

The board voted to give the village of Little Chute $1,000 from the sanatorium sewer fund as additional expense in the construction of the sanatorium sewage disposal system. Cost of the project, which was done with WPA labor, amounted to $6,700, excluding the payment to the village. The county board had set up $10,000 for the job.

Order Purchase
The executive committee was authorized to purchase a calculating machine for the highway office. The vote was 35 to 5.

Open Registrations
Registrations are open for piano classes which are being taught in Appleton under the auspices of the WPA and Appleton Vocational school. ## Farmers Can Grow Soft Coal In Fields, Engineers Told

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Editor

New York — In an emergency American farmers may grow the country's soft coal in their fields.

The fact that fairly good soft coal is now being made from sugars, the carbohydrates of farm crops, was reported today to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers by E. Berl, of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The sugar coal is too expensive to be practical but was made to settle an old controversy about the origin of coal and oil.

In the Carnegie laboratories the artificial coal is made in two ways. Sugar heated in water at high temperature produces a sandy form of coal.

When weak alkali is added to the water, Berl said, "excellent coaking coals" are the result. Adding pressure to the hot sugar water increases the amount of carbon in the man-made coal.

These farm product coals, Berl said, can be treated with hydrogen to make the same products which the Germans and English obtain from "hydrogenated" coal. These products include gasoline and oil for motor cars.

The old idea, said Berl, that coal came from the woody, or lignin, part of plants is as dead as the idea that petroleum is from dead fish.

He said the Carnegie experiments show that coal, oil and bitumen all come from carbohydrates in plants.

Third of U. of W. Budget Used for Service: Dykstra

University President Says School Could be Operated for Less

Waukesha — (U) — At least one-third of the University of Wisconsin's annual budget is expended on scientific research and other services to the public and to the state, Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, university president, told an association of commerce sponsored meeting here last night.

"It would be tragic, indeed, if the university through its services to the state should dig 'its own grave,'" he said, referring to the expense of research conducted by such departments as the agricultural experimental station, the state hospital and medical laboratory.

"We can save the state $43,000 a year by throwing out the medical service furnished by the university. The service used to be a part of the state board of health but they threw it out to the university."

However, he continued, through the medical laboratory "an unusual disease causing an epidemic in the city of Beloit was discovered." Dr. Dykstra said that "without the laboratory $43,000 might have been saved in one year, but the epidemic might have cost the city of Beloit $100,000 in one month."

He also declared that as a result of the agricultural research conducted by the university, Wisconsin farmers now grow 10 times as much alfalfa as they formerly produced.

"We could teach the 12,000 students for much less than we ask each year," Dr. Dykstra said. "At least one-third of the budget is in terms of these services which the citizens have grown to expect of the university, these services which are a part of other state institutions which were added to the university."

"The legislature never will cut down on those services because too many people are interested in the research being done by the various departments," he added. "But it would be tragic if a university which has served the people with such a wide variety of services should be digging its own grave by asking for enough money to continue its educational work."

"It isn't going to get them anywhere in tearing down," he said, and he "hoped" that the state administration would soon bring in some "constructive legislation."

Council May Face Decision Tonight On Wage Question

Additional Petitions Carrying 70 Names Filed In City Hall Today

Additional petitions carrying the names of 70 more Appleton voters and requesting aldermen to cut their own wages to $250 per year were filed in city hall today. More petitions were expected to be filed before tonight's council meeting.

Certification of the names on the petitions submitted was expected to be completed this afternoon and the voters' request probably will be presented for consideration when the council meets at 7:30 this evening in city hall.

The new petitions bring the number of signatures filed to 1,602 well over the number required by law for a referendum demand. Petitioners have at least 15 per cent of the last vote for governor or in this case, 1,361 signers.

The council, under the state law governing cities, has 30 days in which to consider the proposal. The council tonight may either cut their own salaries from $500 to $250 a year, refer the petitions to a vote of the people in the spring election or defer action on the proposal.

The petitions were filed by a group of interested citizens when aldermen on Feb. 1 refused to cut their own wages by failing to act on the 1939 salary ordinance. A previous council meeting also was adjourned without discussing wages.

Virtues Rank With Guns as Means of National Defense

St. Norbert College Official Addresses Rotary Club

Strengthening of its moral fiber as well as increasing its army and navy is essential to a sound national defense program for the United States, the Very Rev. A. M. Keefe, rector at St. Norbert college, De Pere, said in a talk before the Appleton Rotary club yesterday noon in the Conway hotel.

The St. Norbert official made a plea for wider "practice" of the homely virtues, more "discipline in education," philosophy, and a return of the church to the center of a community life. These, he said, are touched with utmost significance when one realizes that America must ward off the "pagan philosophies" of countries like Russia, Germany, and Italy.

The coming clash will be between those two philosophies, the Christian concept of the "dignity of man" and the paganistic belief held by totalitarian countries that man is only a servant of the state.

Striking at what he termed "pseudo-science, a belief that man is only a highly developed animal," Father Keefe attributed its introduction to Karl Marx and said it "has been picked up by those who wish to take advantage of their less fortunate fellow citizens."

Russia, he said, has "returned to a situation just as bad if not worse than its former state." This country, Germany, and Italy he catalogued in the same bracket, declaring they "all represent state worship."

The two philosophies already have clashed, but the fight will grow more formidable, the college official said.

"The Jewish group stuck by its belief in the rights of the individual man and look what is happening to them. The Christians will be next. In fact the Catholics already are being attacked."

Stating that from 30 to 40 percent of American homes are without allegiance to any church, he said that a "re-spiritualization" of America is a prime requisite in a national defense program.

"We must also insist that government keep its place. We must insist that it serve the people rather than the people serving the government."

Communists Lack Clean Hands To Complain About the Press

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Baltimore.—We have heard much about the relation between our press and the public and our press and the advertiser. Some of the top-loftiest scorn has been sounded by the communists and their fellow-traveling stool-pigeons, or undercover men. The charge runs that our press is the corporate press, that it doesn't give opposing opinion a square rattie and that it helps exploiters to rob the people.

In a recent incident, of which a minor scandal was made in the radical press, a New York paper was accused of editing an advertisement for a book. The paper answered that the ad was edited to eliminate label for which the publisher could have been held finally responsible.

Well, what about the communist? How does the Daily Worker, the communist organ in New York, observe the code which the communists and their fellow-travelers lay down for others?

First, the Daily Worker is a corporation itself. It is incorporated for the same legal reasons that United States Steel is incorporated. It recently was haled into court for failure to comply with the state law requiring publication of the names of the responsible officers of newspapers and, under this compulsion, complied.

The state attorney general's office complained that persons who wanted to sue the paper could not find anyone who would admit that he was qualified to receive notice of a suit. They got the old run-around. Everybody in the plant, believe it or not, was just waiting for a street car.

But you ain't heard nothing yet. Not long ago the Atlantic and Pacific stores, the great grocery chain, placed a big ad in a great many daily papers, presenting its argument against the Patman bill which intended to abolish chain stores by taxing them to death.

A representative of the Daily Worker's advertising department called at the office of Carl Byoir, the professional propagandist, who ran the publicity program, and asked that the Daily Worker be given the ad.

The Byoir office agreed and directed Paris & Peart, the advertising agents, to send the copy down to the Daily Worker.

Chain Wasn't Allowed to Present Other Side

Paris & Peart then received a letter signed by Nat Wein, on Work-er stationery, including an editorial which had been published by the Worker denouncing the A. & P. and refusing to accept the ad on the ground that "it would be a breach of propriety to be remunerated for publishing something which is contrary to the views expressed in the editorial page."

Atlantic and Pacific couldn't even buy space in this liberal organ to present the other side of the story. The same principle rigidly governs the communist writers who have been heard to allege with contempt that commentators in the free press take orders from the boss.

But you still ain't heard nothing about the Daily Worker's editorial-advertising policy.

"We assure you," Mr. Wein wrote Paris & Peart, "that we are always more than happy to insert the regular advertising of the A. & P. because we are convinced that we can thereby render the A. & P. unusual service in the way of accelerating the sales of their products and developing an increased number of satisfied and permanent customers."

Letter and Editorial

Don't Fit Together

Now, mark that preceding paragraph and cast your eye back over it as you read the following quotations and indirect quotes from the Worker's editorial on the A. & P. which is slugged "The Fight to Protect the Corner Grocery Man."

The editorial says the A. & P. picks the pocket of the public every day, and "dares to speak as a friend of the farmers it cheats and bull-

dozes year in and year out."

"The big chains use their tremendous power to cut prices only as long as they are fighting to crush down this or that small merchant," it says. "When he is crushed or absorbed prices go up again."

There is much more to it—charges of monopolist thievery, robbery of the consumer, independent merchant and farmer alike and, finally, an exhortation to protect them by legislation which would drive this vicious exploiter out of business.

Now go back and read again of the happiness it gives the communist newspaper to accelerate sales for this ruthless monopoly and "develop an increased number of satisfied" but, obviously, victimized and betrayed customers among the readers of the Daily Worker.

State Vegetable Growers Forming New Cooperative

Organization to be Completed Feb. 28 at Wauwatosa

Articles incorporating the Wisconsin Vegetable Growers cooperative, a new statewide federation of local groups, have been filed with the secretary of state.

Representatives of four growers' group and R. C. Swanson, Milwaukee county agent and former Outagamie county agent, signed the articles. One of the signers is Phil T. Organization will be completed at Wauwatosa Feb. 28 when by-laws will be adopted; directors elected; and a program formulated. Formation of the group resulted from an announcement by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation that it would purchase hereafter only from cooperatives, according to W. L. Witte said the group will direct its efforts to obtain more uniform contracts for all contract vegetable crops; carry on educational work for improved marketing; cooperate with the state department in the standardization of grades; and protect growers from unfavorable legislation.

Third Bot Ring in Calumet County

About Fifty Farmers Meet At Brillion Town Hall To Form Group

Forest Junction — Approximately fifty town of Brillion farmers, addressed at the town hall here Monday afternoon by A. L. McMahon, Chilton, county agricultural agent, made arrangements for community treatment of horses in this area for elimination of bots and worms. The organization, known as a bot ring, is the third to be formed in Calumet county, two similar groups being already organized and functioning in the southeastern part of the county.

The treatment consists of administering a capsule to be swallowed by the animal, and by undertaking the cure on a community basis, veterinarians can be secured to perform the process more economically. Community action is likewise more effective, Mr. McMahon said, as the insects do not move very far from where they originate.

Forty farmers owning a total of approximately 160 horses signed up for membership in the ring and elected Earl Sonnabend, route 1, Brillion, and Frank Ott, route 1, Forest Junction, for completing arrangements. Any other farmers wishing to join will be admitted by applying to either one of these men.

Crop Prospects Best Since '32; Rains Shrink Dust Bowl

Amarillo, Tex. — The smell of damp earth, with a wheat crop germinating in it, has brought high hopes to the great plains dust bowl that this year's crops will be the best since "the big dry spell" started.

January rains in many parts of the drought area smashed moisture records of 50 years' standing and the dust bowl has shrunk to less than a fifth of its original size, the regional office of the soil conservation service at Amarillo reports.

Already the bowl of the southern plains of Texas, New Mexico, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma is in its best condition since 1922 and has been reduced from an area of approximately 50,000,000 acres at its worst in the winter of 1935-36, to only 9,500,000 acres on February 1. H. H. Finnell, regional conservator, reported.

While this represents the total acreage that may be "irritated" or damaged by dust, only 2,664,000 acres, compared with 6,086,000 in 1935-36, actually are still subject to blowing, Finnell said.

Moisture penetration tests in various parts of the bowl area showed the soil is wet to 48 inches and more in many fields that are terraced and contour tilled along lines recommended by the conservation service. On straight-row fields the moisture depth was as much as 36 inches.

Conditions in the northern plains generally aren't as favorable as in the south, but surpass any that have prevailed since the drought started, reports indicate.

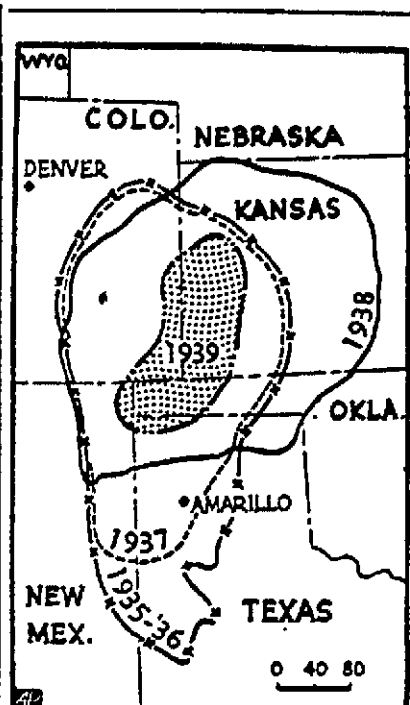

United States bureau of agriculture wheat figures for nine western states—South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico—indicate one of the greatest winter wheat plantings of all time in that territory. The total was 29,718,000 acres, compared with the ten-year average, 1926 to 1935, of "8,605,000 acres.

Then in January came the rains that measured more than four inches in some parts of the bowl and when the great plains advisory committee met at Amarillo late in the month its members reported the "best wheat crop prospects since the drought started."

Services were conducted Tuesday. Will Oaks is a nephew of the deceased.

Howard Palmer fell off the porch at his home Sunday evening when he slipped on ice. He suffered 12 fractured bones in his left wrist and hand.

in ill health for some time left for Rochester Minn. Monday where he entered Mayo Brothers hospital for treatment and observation. He was accompanied to that city by Mrs. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Gunderson entertained the following guests at a valentine party at their home Sunday evening: Mr. and Mrs. Martin Groth, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kling, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Feuerfell, Mr. and Mrs. Delphus Suprise, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fellner, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Miller and Mr. and Mrs. George Jones. Cards and games furnished the amusement. Women's high prize was awarded to Mrs. Leo Kling and low to Mrs. Delphus Suprise; men's high went to Leo Kling and low to Delphus Suprise.

Mrs. Phil Palmer entertained relatives and friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. McCully, Saturday evening. The event was a surprise in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mr. Palmer. Cards and Chinese checkers were played. High score in schafkopf went to Milan Ratsch and low was tied going to Miss Vivian Lindner and Mrs. Carlyle Manley.

Vary Methods to Conserve Nitrogen

Farmers in Different Areas Use Almost Opposite Systems

To help the soil accumulate enough nitrogen to feed a crop of wheat, many farmers in the Pacific northwest follow a cropping system that is almost the opposite of the best method in the southeast, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

In the dry-farming area of eastern Washington and Oregon, and in Idaho and Montana, it is good farming to leave a field fallow for a year and to keep down weeds by cultivation.

This system was adopted originally to accumulate most of the rainfall from 2 years to supply the crop of 1 year. But scientists of the Department of Agriculture and state experiment stations have found that the method also favors accumulation of nitrogen in the readily usable nitrate form. This greater supply of nitrates improves the yield and quality of the grain as a topdressing of nitrate fertilizer would, they report.

In the southeast, good farmers also try to accumulate nitrates, but instead of keeping the land bare they try to keep a plant cover on the field the year round, either a cover crop—a legume for first choice—or a crop of weeds.

This contrast reflects the difference in moisture supply. In the northwest the nitrates become available as the more complex nitrogen compounds break down. There is no

Christian Mothers to Give Open Card Party

Hollandtown—There will be an open card party at St. Francis church Sunday afternoon, the second of a series of four sponsored by the Christian Mothers. On the committee for Sunday are Mrs. Ray Geenen, Mrs. Ray Schmidt, Mrs. John Duffy, Mrs. Peter Vande Hey, Mrs. Margaret Morgan, Mrs. Lem Willens and Mrs. Henry Fassbender. Prizes will be awarded.

Marlene Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peters, has returned to St. Vincent's hospital at Green Bay, where she is ill with pneumonia. She had been home two weeks from the hospital.

The Young Ladies Sodality of St. Francis church will receive communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass Sunday.

OUT-TALKED

London—(AP)—Neville Chamberlain was only second best in the length of speeches in the last session of Parliament.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal Party, took first place with 267 columns, and Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, third with 252.

surplus of moisture to leach the nitrates away. In the southeast however, frequent rains cause serious leaching. The best way to save nitrates is to have a cover crop of plants that will take up the nitrates before they can escape. Then, when the plant cover is ploughed under it quickly decays in the moist soil and the nitrates are again available for the crop that follows.

Psychic Bids Force Player Beyond Depth

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Psychic bidding has one virtue which is rarely discussed or even perceived in most circles. It encourages the opponents to go beyond their depth. This, I realize, is a somewhat paradoxical statement, but it is nevertheless true. When the opponents "spot" a psychic bid, they often form the unalterable opinion that the player is trying to keep them out of a slam. Hence, with the perversion of human nature and of bridge players in particular, they may doggedly keep bidding simply because they "will not be talked out of anything."

It probably is true that the psychic bidder has tried to scare them out, but his partner may turn up with just enough strength to defeat their overbid contract. Or sometimes the psychic bidder himself has one card for which the opponents will not give him credit, but which will be the deciding factor in the play. That was the case in the following hand, played in a team-of-four match between England and France. The result, although tragic to the losing team, had its amusing side.

East dealer. North-South vulnerable.

NORTH		WEST		EAST
A 8 7 5		None		10 8 6 4 2
K 2		9 8 7 4		Q J 10 3
J		10 7 5 4 3 2		K 9 8 6
Q 10 10 5 2		K 6 4		None
SOUTH		WEST		EAST
K Q 5		None		10 8 6 4 2
A 8 5		9 8 7 4		Q J 10 3
A Q		10 7 5 4 3 2		K 9 8 6
A 8 8 7 8		K 6 4		None

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 club	1 spade	Double
Pass	Pass	1 no trump	Double
Pass	Pass	2 diamonds	4 clubs
4 diamonds	5 diamonds	Pass	5 spades
Pass	7 clubs	Pass	Pass
7 diamonds	7 no trump	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

The result of this remarkable bidding sequence was, of course, that South was down one due to the failure of the club finesse. At seven diamonds, East-West probably would have gone down 900 points. Since, at the other table, the South player was permitted to play the hand at six clubs, the swing was terrific.

As I have said, it is probable that West's psychic bidding (one spade followed by one no trump) accounted for the optimism of the North-South team. Apparently, South got the fixed idea that West did not have a face card, which led him to believe that if there were a finesse in the hand it could be taken successfully through East. Hence he contemptuously rejected East's sacrifice offer of seven diamonds, to go out for a vulnerable grand slam of his own.

It is one thing to explain the probable cause of an event and another to justify it. I feel sure that South would not have gone to a grand slam if the opponents had stayed out of the auction. In that case the bidding probably would have proceeded as follows:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 club	Pass	1 spade
Pass	2 no trump	Pass	4 clubs
Pass	4 no trump	Pass	5 spades
Pass	6 clubs	Pass	Pass

It is true that a contract of six spades might have been reached, and that it would have been defeated because of the horrible spade break, but this would have been hard luck rather than bad bidding. It is all very well to be guided by the opponents' bidding—to be encouraged or discouraged according to the situation. It is very wrong, however, and very costly, to form fixed notions about anything at bridge, and the most dangerous thing of all is to assume that, because an opponent "spots," he will not be able to take a trick.

My Neighbor Says—

If you wish to make a golden meringue to place on a pudding after it has been poured into sherbet glasses, make the meringue as usual and drop by spoonfuls on a well-oiled pan and brown in oven. Then lift carefully with a spatula and place meringue on each pudding.

It is perfectly hardy and keeps its beautiful green leaves all the year around. It climbs rapidly on any kind of rough surface and in the Fall produces a great profusion of orange-red berries that closely resemble the fruit of the bitter-sweet vine. Nobody who starts one of these vines will make a mistake.

Baked or broiled fish requires frequent basting to prevent it from becoming dry. Two tablespoons of butter may be added to two-thirds of a cup of boiling water for this purpose.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Donna, the female half of the famous Hispanic dancers, Medrano and Donna, is one of the hardest working dancers in the profession. Of all the many types of dances, the Spanish and varied Latin-American dances are the most tiring and exacting. As she gives a program in one of the fashionable night places, Donna goes through a great deal of leg, heel, arm and foot work, not to mention the back-bending and twisting which makes the original Argentine tango the fascinating dance it is. Her swift, peasant dance the "Paso Doble" is a dynamic one with effective heel rhythm and exhaustive finger work with castanets.

Trained from Childhood
This Latin beauty hails from South America and from early childhood has displayed an urgent tendency to dance. Back when the tango was prohibited in Buenos Aires—frowned on as a "low" dance—this dark-eyed minx would follow organ grinders and dance to their stimulating music of the tango. At the approach of the law she would run and hide! But once, not nimble enough she was taken to the police station, but was soon released on her promise not to dance the tango on the streets again.

Many years later, when she had perfected her dancing, the President of Argentina bestowed upon her an honorary degree of arts at the University Nacional. The first dancer to be thus honored! As you see her graceful body dramatize the dance, you marvel at her muscle control. Not a slip away from the commanding rhythm! Never a toe or heel pointed off beat! Her supple body is so compelling that it appears to be all muscle and no bone!

Upon interviewing her she admitted that she exercised daily to preserve that supple grace, and three of her beautifying movements you may do to advantage at home!

Finger Grace
Place tip of thumb on table with wrist high and four fingers raised in air. Press down on thumb and at same time, lower one finger slowly at a time until it barely touches the table. Start slowly, increase in speed until fingers are tired. This is for finger grace.

Place one foot before the other about ten inches in solid stance. Slowly twist your trunk left as far as you can go. Then bend down to the left as far as possible. Return to position. Repeat toward right. Change foot position and repeat exercise until you feel all muscles stretched.

Place feet about fifteen inches apart. Slowly raise yourself on toes. Lift one foot, remaining on toes of other. While in this position do a knee-bend as high as possible. Repeat with other foot. Use the wall for support at first, later do without support.

Send for my limb and ankle exercises. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for the leaflet.

Timidity May be the Lack of Something in Body, Patri Says

BY ANGELO PATRI

Bubbs, past four, went out to play. Tommy, Harry and Phil, close to his age, rushed to meet him. Tommy got there first and poked Bubbs in the softest part of his middle with his stiff forefinger.

"Wow," cried Bubbs, and immediately ran to the wall and hid his face against it, waiting for help.

"Come out of there, you Sissy," yelled Phil. "Come on out of there and sock him one in the beaver."

"He won't sock ME," said Tommy, swaggering about the yard. "He's afraid of me. He's afraid of little Smittie. He's as big as your finger and he's scared of him. Aren't you, Bubbs? You are scared, aren't you?"

"Go 'way! You go 'way! Ma-ma-ma-ma."

Bubbs' much tried mother appeared and took her son by the hand. "Now what's the matter? Why can't you boys play nicely with Bubbs? What do you want to tease him and plague him and hit him for? I'm going to speak to your mothers."

"Aw, he won't play with us," they complained in justification. "He's a baby."

Mother spoke to Phil's mother. "Well," said that lady, coldly, "I can't stay in the yard with the children. They have to take care of themselves. Bubbs is as old as they are. He must learn to stick up for himself."

"Right," said father. "If he's too yellow to fight, let him take it." Yes, but what about Bubbs not being able to take it? Any healthy child of four stands up for his rights. If he is not well he cannot. Even children seemingly healthy, eating, sleeping and growing according to schedule, have troubles that deprive them of courage, and power, for their daily needs.

When a child is timid don't waste time telling him to be brave. Don't bother insulting him. Just take him to the best children's specialist and ask him to try to find the cause of this child's lack. Maybe it is diet, maybe it is defective vision, maybe it is defective glands. Somewhere something is wrong and the specialist can help you find it.

There is no use trying to force courage on a timid child. Courage is a matter of health. When the nerves and muscles work in harmony, when every organ is doing its maximum work, every gland sending out the right amount of juice to keep things working accurately, courage is the natural expression of the personality.

If anything is lacking in the complex organism that is the body, the lack is reflected in its reactions. Timidity may be the result of such a lack and it is best to make sure

Maintains There's a Cure For Every Unhappy Marriage

BY DOROTHY DIX

Just as there is a cure for almost every known disease, so is there a cure for almost every unhappy marriage. Not many marriages would reach the point where they require the major operation of a divorce if only people would apply a few simple home remedies to them when they first begin to be ailing.

DOROTHY DIX

Strangely enough, however, the very men and women who rush posthaste to doctor and nurse themselves X-rayed, commence taking tonics and go on a diet if they lose their appetite or have that tired feeling or suffer an ache or a pain physically, never think about doing anything about it when something gets the matter with their marriages.

Apparently they never even attempt to diagnose their trouble or to find out why they have lost their taste for their husbands and wives. They make no effort to learn why they are running a temperature and some pretty little flapper or good-looking playboy, or why all the pep has gone out of the marriage and still less do they try to apply any intelligent treatment to the maladies that afflict them and which would seldom prove fatal if taken in time.

Consider some of the common complaints from which matrimony suffers. Perhaps the most familiar of these is lassitude. Boredom. Husbands and wives cease to interest each other. They are afflicted with seeing over and over each other's little bag of tricks. When they are together they are silent because each knows what the other is going to say before he or she says it.

When husbands and wives begin to get tired of each other and bore each other the remedy is so plainly indicated that it would seem that even a couple of morons would see it and apply it. It is a railroad or a steamboat ticket. It is for one or the other of them, or both, to get away in a new environment. They should go somewhere where they will have fresh contacts, hear and see new things. They need to get far enough away from each other to get a true perspective on each other's virtues instead of being so near together that they only have a close-up of each other's faults.

A month's separation will turn nearly any fighting married couple into billing and cooing doves and give them a new honeymoon. Why more husbands and wives who are fed up on each other's society don't vary their diets by domestic vacations goodness only knows.

Another disease that sends many marriages to the cemetery is chronic anemia. Husbands and wives starve each other to death for love and appreciation. The man never pays his wife a compliment after his wedding day or gives her a kiss that isn't an insult because it is such a peck of duty on the cheek, or the back hair, or the middle of her ear, or wherever it happened to fall. The woman absorbs her self in her children and never sees what is in store for me after this year? Will I marry again, or will my husband outlive me? "My younger son ran away from home six months ago. Can you tell me what city he now lives in? And is he married?"

"Last month my husband misplaced a $10 bill. Can you tell me where we can find it?"

DIAGNOSIS:
No, I cannot tell Becky specifically what the future holds for her, and neither can any other human being.

There are thousands of fortune tellers, spiritualists and crystal gazers, however, who profess to read the future for a fee of 25c to $5.00, but they are simply clever quacks who hoodwink the gullible.

And one of our leading psychologists estimated the gullible in this country as numbering at least 50 per cent of our population, so you can readily see why these fortune tellers and quack character analysts reap a rich harvest.

When I was teaching at George Washington University 15 years ago, the late Houdini was trying to get Congress to pass a law compelling every fortune teller and character analyst in Washington, D. C. to pay a license fee of $50 per year. And over 500 were willing to pay such a sum in that city of 500,000 population!

Don't Be A Sucker
Despite our scientific advancement, millions of Americans are still ready to believe in witches. They still let prejudice obscure their logic. They still hope a roulette wheel or race horse will make them wealthy.

They spend enough energy and time trying to do one up a winning system from the racing sheets that they could have acquired a law or medical degree with the same effort and study.

Girls still believe in the fallacy that there is a "one and only" sweetheart who will search them out if they just sit still and wait. Even Cinderella, however, had to go out among people, make the Prince like her, and then leave him a guide in the form of her slippers, or she'd have died an old maid.

Science teaches that there is a sure but hard road to fame and fortune. It requires years and years of conscientious study. Since many people don't like to pay the price for such a laboriously earned fame, they turn in typical childish fashion to semi-literate magicians and fortune tellers.

Even college graduates will let illiterate gypsies tell them which girl or boy to marry, which stocks to buy, or which profession to enter.

Beware Of Quackery
This country is full of medical and psychological quacks who prey upon the gullible. Don't be sucker. Use your brains and take your advice from trained scientists instead of fakers.

Some of your fortune teller's predictions will come true because of chance alone. If I were to tell you of a future meeting with a blonde, of course it wouldn't be long till you found my words coming true, for there are plenty of blondes as well as brunettes. Every family likewise has sickness and misfortune at some time or other.

We also change jobs frequently. And a neatly manicured hand or palm is obviously not from a laboring man. A little common sense, a little detective work by the analyst, and a gullible customer, spell success in fortune telling. Houdini proved that among the spiritualists, too.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

THE CHARACTERS
Peter Mallone: An adventurous young Englishman.
Petronella: His sister, and staunch supporter.

Chapter Four
Burna
The voyage out to Rangoon exceeded both Peter's and Peter's most optimistic expectations. As soon as they had settled down to the ship's life, they discovered that the "Ayrshire" was carrying an exceptional number of young people. There were six girls going out for the season. If they were part of the famous "Fishing fleet" they displayed no signs of anxiety. Their light-hearted love affairs engaged them with the newest "chakra," eastward bound, with the ship's officers, or with anybody who happened to attract them. They formed themselves, after the first few days, into a mob of young, riotous people, who ran the ship, and whose spirit carried all before it.

Petronella was madly excited and happy, touched to her heart and fearful. Just when the fun raged at its wildest and maddest, she would feel her delight suddenly checked, held, in the midst of laughter, turned to fear. What was going to happen to them all? Last Mac Jamieson was going to be banished for five years to the jungles of Ceylon. Would he be happy there? So many of them did not know anything about the life to which they were going. So few of them knew what it meant to be lonely. In their serious moments, they talked to the older passengers, questioning them, listening to them. Peter asked questions, too, of a tall, gray haired man in the L.C.S. His young wife had died of acute appendicitis, in a lonely station. He told her other stories that seemed to threaten the gaily colored bubble of the present with a thorny landing.

When they reached Colombo, six of them hired a car and drove up to Kandi. In the sticky heat, they found it difficult to keep awake, and nudged each other when they dozed, to make them look at the scenery. They saw the Temple of the Tooth, the elephants working timber. On the road home they were driven into a ditch, without accident. The driver, a miserable specimen, demanded more money, before he would persuade his friends to haul the car out again. Encouraged by Peter, they levered it out themselves, and drove on, leaving him sitting in the middle of the road with a punched head. They left his taxi in its rank, dined at a hotel, and swam by moonlight in the warm, breaking waves at Mount Lavinia. They caught the "Ayrshire," which sailed at one o'clock, by five minutes.

Petronella was pleased, surprised, but anxious to feel his friends' when her gray haired friend in workman's service gave her a beautiful embroidered shawl. Although he said nothing, he told her his eyes that he loved her.

All this was very old stuff indeed to two hundred of the passengers. But it was very new to the Mallones.

Golden Pagoda
After Colombo, they were suddenly anxious to arrive. The ship already carried ghosts. There were emptier decks, and a deserted "reeling" about the dining saloon and cocktail alley. A great many of the forty who had sung songs, danced, and made love, had disembarked. Those that were left, spent the last few days more quietly, tending to huddle together, wondering about the future, in sympathy.

Their ship entered the brown water from the Irrawaddy.

They stood leaning over the rail, until land came into sight, green land, with oil dumps, and against dark trees and a tender morning sky, a small golden pagoda which caught the sun.

Colonel Mallone came aboard with the customs launch. His topcoat looked sizes too big for him. Peter felt sheepish, meeting him. But his father did not allude to his unsatisfactory past.

"Glad you made up your mind to take a good job, at last. You are to be commended."

A Short History of China

VIII—Japan and Korea

More than 2,500 years ago, Japan was settled by people who were later to play an important part in Chinese history.

The early history of Japan is not clear in every way. We do not know the exact "stock" of the Japanese, but it seems certain that their ancestors were of mixed races. Most early Japanese are believed to have been settlers from northeastern Asia, relatives of the Chinese. We have good proofs, however, that large numbers of people from the South Sea Islands reached Japan in ancient times. They must have married with the settlers from Asia.

Japan obtained its system of writing from China. There have been many changes, to be sure, but present-day Japanese writing is a great deal like Chinese. The islands of Japan were settled long ago by people known as Ainos. The Ainos were driven from one island to another by the later settlers. Those now left kept to themselves, and have only a few villages. Their history may be compared to that of the American Indians north of Mexico.

The real Japanese, that is, the people who now make up the vast majority of the inhabitants, have black hair and lightly colored skins. We are in the custom of speaking of their skins as "yellow," but it is closer to the truth to say that the Japanese have very light brown skins with a tinge of yellow in the brows.

Stretching far out from the coast of Asia, and almost reaching the Japanese islands, is a jut of land known as Korea or Chosen. It is nearly as large as Italy, not counting Sicily, and is like Italy in some other ways. For instance, it has a "mountain backbone" like Italy's.

Legend tells us Korea was settled by 5,000 Chinese led by a man named Kija. This is supposed to have happened almost 3,100 years ago. For a time, Korea was a kingdom. It became a part of the Chinese empire in the time of Kublai Kahn.

Three and a half centuries ago, Japanese soldiers made attacks on Korea. They won some success, but at length were driven away by Chinese armies.

Fifty-four years ago, Japan made war with China again, and this time they were the victors. By the peace treaty, China gave up Korea. Japan let it be a "free country" for a time, but in 1910 added it to her empire, calling it "Chosen."

When Japan obtained power over Korea, it gave her a foothold on the mainland of Asia. This foothold has helped Japan's armies to win power over Manchuria and other parts of China.

Zephyrs to Face Neenah Cagers in Non-League Game

Twin City Rivals to Clash Friday at St. Mary's Gymnasium

Menasha—St. Mary's High school cagers will dip into non-conference competition Friday night when they oppose the powerful Neenah High school quintet in St. Mary's gymnasium. The Zephyrs will be out for revenge for they dropped a 29 to 20 in the first clash between the two schools in the Neenah gymnasium on Dec. 20.

The Zephyrs have won three games against non-conference opponents and have dropped five. In the conference they have won six and lost one for a total record of nine victories and six defeats.

Two victories against Northeastern Wisconsin conference opponents are included in the Zephyr string. The St. Mary's team defeated Kaukauna 25 to 19 and New London by 34 to 32. They also dropped a 28 to 24 decision to Kaukauna. However, Neenah has defeated both of the teams that the Zephyrs whipped, scoring 27 to 20 and 38 to 26 victories over Kaukauna and 21 to 15 and 20 to 18 victories over New London.

Both the Zephyrs and the Red Rockets have lost a tilt to Appleton High of the Fox Valley conference while the Zephyrs have dropped two games to Manitowish of the same conference.

The St. Mary's team will have an advantage because of the grueling game that Neenah had against Shawano Tuesday night. If there is a reaction from that game, the Neenah team may be a bit ragged. If all of the Zephyrs are in top physical condition they will be able to give the Red Rockets a battle in the St. Mary's gymnasium. However, Monday night for the St. Norbert game four of the players were on the ailing list.

They were Coenen, Picard, Laux and Prunescu, although all of them did get into the game. Peterson, Schmidt and Hesselman were the top scorers for Neenah in the first game between the two schools with each player counting four baskets. Laux, Resch and Picard had two each for the Zephyrs.

Reserve teams of the two schools will meet in a preliminary game at 7:15 Friday night. The Neenah reserves won an easy victory in the first meeting between the two squads.

Committee Will Recommend Sewer Construction on Van Street Will be Asked at Council Session

Neenah—To eliminate back flow of sanitary sewers into basements of homes in the southwestern part of the city, the public improvement committee at a meeting Tuesday night at the city hall decided to recommend to the council installation of a sanitary sewer on Van street from Monroe to Main streets.

The proposed sanitary sewer will take all of the sewage south of Monroe street and west of the Soo Line railroad tracks off the Adams street pump.

The committee approved the assessment for installation of sanitary sewers and water mains on Elm street from Laudan boulevard to Cecil street and on Hanson street. The assessments for sewers is $1 a foot and for water mains 50 cents a foot. There were no objections to the assessments at the hearing conducted by the committee last night.

Bids on 2,115 feet of 15-inch sewer pipe and 60 tees were opened, and the Home Fuel company was awarded the contract at a cost of $13,858.61. Because there will be a change in price, the city clerk was authorized to put in an order for the pipe.

Engineer Mixes Magic With Fire Prevention at Safety School

Neenah—Mixing a skillful demonstration of magic with pertinent points in fire prevention and fire protection Claude Bawden, engineer of the Underwriters Laboratories Incorporated of Youngstown, Ohio, entertained more than 500 persons who attended the third of the safety school programs Tuesday night in the Neenah High school auditorium.

Mr. Bawden opened his show by producing a large bowl of goldfish from a bit of silk, made a thimble appear and disappear by sleight of hand, performed a trick with a handkerchief and an egg and then admitted that the magic was only to keep the audience from sleeping, and that his main purpose was to discuss fire prevention.

He pointed out that the Chicago fire was the greatest modern fire, exceeded only by the burning of Rome while Nero fiddled. The Chicago fire destroyed 2,000 acres of homes and business places, made 100,000 persons homeless and many more than that jobless.

Billion Per Year

The spirits wrote on a magic slate of Mr. Bawden's to indicate that the annual fire loss per year is one billion dollars, including cost of fire departments, cost of the water service and economic loss through loss of life, wages and time as well as actual monetary loss.

To make the tremendous sum more understandable the speaker cited illustrations. Estimates are that 350,000 persons cross Brooklyn bridge daily. With the $1,000,000,000 cost of fires in this country each individual could be given a new automobile for five days in succession or each person on one day could receive a check for $2,857.14.

"Every minute of the day and night a home is destroyed by fire somewhere in the United States and you and I pay for that. It's easy if you know where to get $100 dollar gold pieces," the speaker declared and proceeded to snatch coins from the air. "But even at the rate of $100 each two seconds, it is not enough to pay for the fire loss." He fed the coins into a furnace which flared up each two seconds throughout the rest of his program to remind the audience of the tremendous loss caused by fire.

Carelessness Is Factor

"No dollars and cents value can be placed on the loss of life from fire. Each year from 8,000 to 10,000 persons lose their lives in fires of which two-thirds are lost in the home due to carelessness at some time or another."

The magician next produced a skeleton. "I am your worst enemy," the skeleton with clacking jaws told the audience. "I lurk everywhere—in the home, on the street, in the office, at the railroad crossing—everywhere. I am stronger than the armies of the world. I am Carelessness."

Demonstrating the value of carefulness, the magician caused two bowls of rice to appear where only one appeared before. After showing the various parts to the audience, the magician constructed a house and from the house took a succession of silks, a vase of flowers and finally two large silks with writing on them and a huge wooden match.

He referred to the match as a "monster with a head and no brain" and declared that every match is a potential fire. He went on to tell of a fire caused when a man accidentally rocked on a match with an old-fashioned rocking chair. The resulting fire destroyed three homes, injured two firemen and resulted in the death of a little girl.

Messages on Silks

The messages on the silks included: 1. Use matches with care. 2.

Think safety always. 3. Protect open flames. 3. Burn oily rags at once. 4. If smoking, use caution. 5. Do not clean with gasoline or benzene. 6. Never start a fire with kerosene. In each case he cited examples of losses caused by violations of the rules.

"But the things that we bring into the home can be causes of fire," the speaker declared and mentioned numerous electrical devices as well as other items. "Quality has been sacrificed by some manufacturers in order to meet price competition. It is impossible for the consumer to tell if an article is safe for us, but he can rely on the label of the Underwriters Laboratories which appears on safety-tested articles."

Mr. Bawden explained that the laboratory is not a commercial organization but exists only to test the articles submitted by manufacturers as to safety. Manufacturers do not have to submit articles for test.

Extinguisher Important

Returning to the seemingly inexhaustible house, Mr. Bawden drew out a fire extinguisher. He pointed out that local firemen do fire prevention work when they inspect homes and buildings and make safety recommendations. He pointed out that fire protection also is necessary in the form of an extinguisher which can be operated by all members of the family. "The first thing to do when there is a fire is to call the department but the first few minutes are important in fighting fires and each home should have fire protection." When he drew a live rabbit from the house, the supply of articles apparently was exhausted.

After making a block of wood pass through a pane of glass, Mr. Bawden concluded his talk by urging his listeners to look around their homes and to remove fire hazards that have been tolerated simply because the person was not fire-conscious and did not know that they existed.

The speaker was introduced by Leo O. Schubert of the Neenah Paper company. Irwin Pearson led the group singing with Elmer Schultheiss at the piano. The Lakeview band, under the direction of Lester Mais, presented a concert before the program opened.

U. S. Can't Afford Isolation Policy, Professor Claims

MacMurray Advises Middle of the Road Position for America

Neenah — Unless the United States drastically reconstructs vast agricultural and industrial areas, it can't afford to practice its isolation policy and lose the 10 per cent of the national income from foreign trade, Professor Howard J. MacMurray of the University of Wisconsin extension division said in the final of a series of six lectures Tuesday night at Kimberly school.

He pointed out that although foreign trade amounts to only 10 per cent of our national income, the total annual profits in the United States is only 3 per cent.

"Without foreign trade, we could not show a profit and you can't operate the capitalist system without profits," the professor stated. "Under government supervision, we could readjust our system of economics, but it would require more drastic and radical changes than have been proposed." He said that production and distribution would have to be controlled, also.

"As America refused to pay the price for real isolationism, although we have an isolationist attitude, and as neither Americans nor Europeans would accept a world order based on free trade, peace and consent, I advise that we follow the middle position, maintaining our basic political democracy," the professor said.

Explains Trade

MacMurray explained that the reasons why reconstruction is necessary under a complete isolation policy is that large parts of our country depend upon foreign trade. For instance, 60 per cent of the cotton produced in the south, 20 per cent of the wheat in the west, 20 per cent of the corn hogs and 20 to 25 per cent of the tobacco produced are shipped abroad. He said that substitutes for this surplus produce would have to be provided.

The political science student claimed that America needn't fear invasion for a long time. He said the United States has been consistent in following the Monroe doctrine, keeping major world powers out of South America. "We use the doctrine to our own advantage, however," he said, "but it is wholesome and consistent."

President Roosevelt's policy of cooperation with South American countries is especially recommended, he said. "We believe in America for Americans, and we are willing to enforce our belief even to a threat of war," Professor MacMurray contended. "A combination of European countries may be successful in taking our commerce off the seas, but they couldn't successfully attack us."

Menasha chamber representatives were Milton Boehm, James Howley and James Chapin. The new organization adopted an amendment to the constitution for the election of officers from the board of directors by the general membership. Norman Greenwood, program chairman, appointed the committee to take charge of the March meeting. The committee is composed of Peter Gehrk, chairman, Charles Larson, Earl Gravenston and Gordon Erdmann.

Movie Land Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Visit Hollywood's night spots, attend its starier premieres, tour its studios and — if you happen to be a close observer — you'll inevitably end by wondering at the strange death of happy faces among the screen's famous folk. You see petulant faces, haughty faces, worried faces, despairing faces; now and then you see a gay, excited face — but the expression that evinces real content, or happiness, is not to be found in Hollywood.

I don't think I've ever known a contented star. Those who are on the way up are, grimly fighting, clawing and scratching to pick up speed; those who are on top are desperately trying to forestall the tobooggan race; those who are on their way out are forever looking back in bitterness and disillusionment. And everyone of them is on nerve's edge, for at no time in an actor's entire career does he ever have a satisfying "margin of security." He may be wealthy, but his most valued possession — fame — it is a will-o'-the-wisp. And he's afraid.

At the bottom of the general discontent, I suppose, is the self-interest, the personal vanity, that is an absolute pre-requisite to the acting urge. People who are driven by that kind of vanity are ready-made victims of envy. And the result is, of course, the dog-eat-dog-and-devil-take-the-hindmost scramble that is Hollywood. These people are hopeless — without success they are starved; with success they are too terrified to really calm down and enjoy it.

Idol chatter. Ann Sheridan reminds me that a series of well-balanced curves are the shortest path to stardom. And fingernail biters: William Gargan, who's old enough to know better. But Charles Boyer has never given in to an impulse of the moment in his entire life. Candidate for this week's most unbecoming name award: Chill Wills, who's KKO comic. Don't know whether divorce or romance is to blame, but Bette Davis is developing a Garbo complex. Frank Morgan must have an easy conscience — thirty-seconds after the directors say "Cut," he's in his set chair, sound asleep.

Herbert Marshall's sad, enigmatic puss always makes me think of a print of the Mona Lisa which used to hang in my high school library. Fizzling thought: Now that Wayne Morris is actually married, what can the Warner Brothers press agents

Be A Careful Driver

Whenever a picture idea pays box office dividends, its producers invariably go berserk and attempt to sequel in the hope of establishing a profitable series. Take the Warner Brothers, for instance, and their picture, "Four Daughters," which brought in a flood of admission fees. The Messrs. Warner immediately decided to try a series with the first follow-up entitled "Four Wives." I have a suggestion for the third production — a suggestion that follows the true Hollywood pattern. Why not make it "Four Divorces."

Despite his wealth, popularity and colorful experience, Howard Hughes, friends know him as a very bashful man. Witness the story told about his introduction to Marlene Dietrich, his current date-and-dance partner. They met shortly after Howard returned from that record-breaking flight around the world. And after floundering awkwardly for something to say, Mr. Hughes finally managed this: "I hardly know how to talk to a woman like you — you've been everywhere!" (Copyright 1938)

Indians at Capital to Ask for New Manager

Washington — James Frechette, Al Dodge and Gordon Dickey of the Menominee Indian tribe are here seeking the removal of H. W. Johannes, general manager of the lumber mill, and asking changes in credit regulations.

They saw an assistant commissioner of Indian affairs, Fred Daiker, Monday, but have been unable

Identify Wisconsin Birds

CANVAS-BACK

This is one of a series of 38 brief articles describing birds common to Wisconsin. It is suggested that readers clip these articles and illustrations for a scrapbook.

The Canvas-back is a large duck usually seen during migration in flocks on open water lakes or flying in compact wedge-shaped formation in a steady, direct course. The males appear almost white on the back and wings, the head long and sloping. The female is a uniform rusty brown.

This duck is now largely a spring and fall migrant through Wisconsin, but formerly was a common summer resident.

so far to obtain an appointment with Indian Commissioner John Collier. Collier is reported very busy appearing before closed sessions of the House of Representatives appropriations committee on appropriations for the bureau.

Many Solons Put Kin on Pay Rolls

One of 14 House Members Has Relative of Same Name Drawing Wages

Washington — (AP) — The first pay roll for the new congress showed today that one out of every 14 house members has a relative — or a person with the same name as his — drawing a congressional salary.

Ten Republicans and 21 Democrats had clerks in their offices with surnames identical with their own.

They do not include those members who have relatives with different names on the house pay roll or who may place a son or brother in the office of another congressman in return for a like favor.

House members can pay a total of $5,000 a year to two clerks, but $3,900 is the maximum for an individual.

The list of congressmen who have clerks with the same names as theirs in their offices and the amounts the latter were paid for their first month's work included: Crosser (D-Ohio), Barbara Crosser, $208.33; Grant (R-Ind.), Margaret A. Grant $140; Hawks (R-Wis.), Lucille A. Hawks $155.00; McAndrews (D-Ill.), Louise McAndrews $187.50; McKeough (D-Ill.), Catherine T. McKeough $116.66; Mason (D-Ill.), John T. Mason, Jr., $100; May (D-Ky.), Julia G. May $250; Rabaut (D-Mich.), Mary Jane Rabaut $208.33; Routzahn (R-Ohio), Leona K. Routzahn $155.55; Schafer (R-Wis.), Elsie Schafer $233.33.

Sergeant Radtke Will Attend State Meeting

Sergeant Carl Radtke of the city police department will attend a meeting of the board of directors of the Wisconsin Policemen's Protective association at Watertown Monday. Assistant Chief of Police Vigo Soemson, Neenah, also a member of the board, will attend the session.

Be A Careful Driver

Car Assemblies Recover; Steel Demand Steady

Rail Orders Offset by Drop in Structural, Reinforcing Steel Buying

Cleveland — Steel demand is barely holding its own. Some fairly large rail orders have been placed, but these have partly been offset by a letdown in structural and concrete reinforcing bar bookings. Tin plate business is quickening, while variations in demand elsewhere are slight, according to magazine Steel.

Reflecting only small change in the volume of new business, ingot production is moving within a narrow range. Last week the national rate was up 1 point to 54 per cent, a new high for 1939 and comparing with 31 per cent a year ago. In the corresponding 1937 week the average was 81 per cent and three years ago it was 83. Motorcar assemblies last week rebounded from 79,410 units to 84,500 and recovered about one-half the loss of the previous week, when adverse weather hampered operations of some interests. With Ford output steady at 21,750 units, General Motors last week stepped up from 33,865 to 34,065, Chrysler from 15,820 to 20,845 and all others from 1975 to 8040. Production for the industry is more than 45 per cent larger than a year ago.

Railroad steel buying is headed by orders for about 80,000 tons of rails. Union Pacific railroad has indicated it will start work within 60 days at its own shops to build 2000 steel box cars.

Mixed tendencies prevailed last week in ingot production at individual plants and districts. In most areas output was unchanged or higher. Chicago was up 2.5 points to 51 per cent, eastern Pennsylvania rose 2 points to 36, Youngstown gained 2 points to 44. Detroit also increased 2 points to 94, while St. Louis was up 1.5 points to 50.

Activity declined at two centers, Cleveland being down 7.5 points to 56.5 per cent, with Buffalo off 2.5 points to 37. Unchanged districts included Pittsburgh at 46, Wheeling at 64, Birmingham at 80, Cincinnati at 53 and New England at 70.

The government's $1,500,000 exhibit at the San Francisco world fair is devoted largely to Indian life.

Luxembourg has an army of only 250 men.
